Blood, Sweat, and Tears

Behind The Scenes

The band swept the competition; the football team played strategically; the photojournalism class pictured the action; the Thespians performed dramatically, and ALL worked long and hard for everyone's enjoyment. How did the school achieve such monumental success? The answer was simple — WORK, WORK, and more WORK. Hours upon hours of practice, rehearsal, and preparation went into each finished product. Each club, class, and team contributed to the overall successful presentation to the outside world. Behind the trophies, banners, and plaques stood conscientious students and dedicated teachers to do it all over again.

Robert Dickerson is very intrigued and wonders what makes this thing tick.

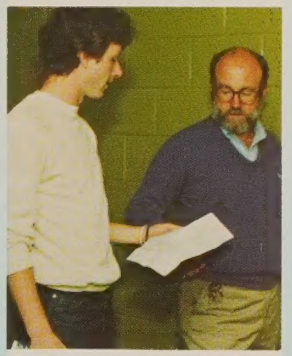
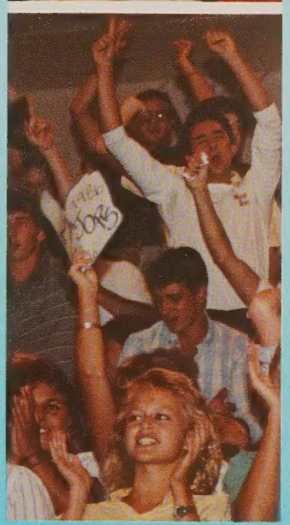
Leon Bryan seems to be the only one interested in being photographed today.





Let The "Celebration" Begin

Behind The Scenes

It took only one person to light the spark and guide others to heights of achievement. The individual was and always will be valued highly and respected greatly. Whether before, after, or during the school day, the individual labeled by others was the necessary force behind any successful project. The different components of a school program were only as good as the individuals that comprised them. Like Emerson said, "the individual should be celebrated."

Brian Kennealy and Karen Rizzo are very involved in today's lesson.

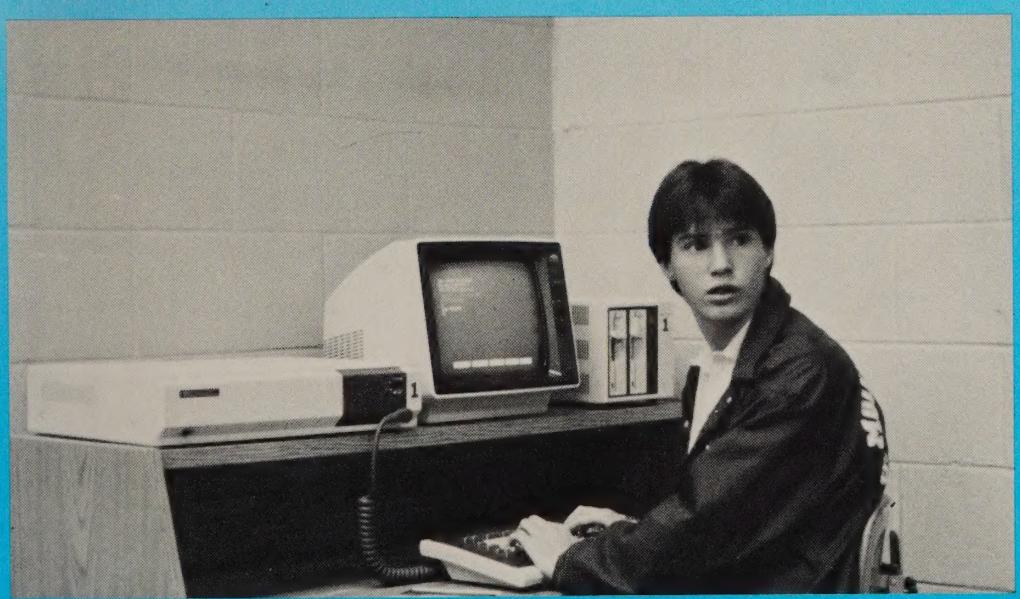
Jeff Souryal doesn't think "things go better with coke."

Jody Coleman is amazed at what he sees in his friend's locker.



Eddie Gagermeier is surprised at the last minute change in the program.

Lunar Song just can't believe what she sees even though she likes it.

The Art of Communication
Behind The Scenes

The eyes, the smiles, the body gestures were all methods employed by students and staff members to communicate with each other. Not everyone was able to relay messages effectively and accurately but everyone tried unhesitantly. There was definitely a need to restrain oneself verbally at times and more advantageous to express oneself with body movements. To communicate on all levels with all people took a lot of practice and time.

Homecoming Festivities

The 1985 Homecoming festivities included a host of pleasant surprises. The football team was expected to win but not slaughter the opponent. The queen was expected to be beautiful but not radiant. The celebrants expected inclement weather but made the most of it. Everyone was commended on a well-organized program. The athletic department supported the efforts of the different classes and different sponsors. The Athletic Boosters, under the leadership of Mr. Elliott Tepper, stepped up their already overwhelming school support. From the inception of the big event to the last second of the gala, students, parents, teachers, administrators, and community members felt a sense of pride and respect unmatched.

Homecoming Floats

Floats, floats, and more floats paraded around the football field night of the 1985 Homecoming gala. the Class of '87 displayed the "Nightmare on Lancer Street." The remains of Freddy Kruger's victims were strewn about realistically. The Class of '88 came in second with "Snow White and The Seven Majors." Third place went to the outstanding Class of '86 with its version of the Death Mobile from the movie "Animal House." Even though the freshmen didn't win the float competition, they did have a good showing with their "Raiders of the Major Ark." Students spent a lot of time and energy working on these showpieces for everyone's pleasure. Parents also deserved a great deal of credit for the loan of their homes. Most felt it was worth it.

Beauty Reigns

The only moment of any football game where one can hear a hush fall over a crowd is with the crowning of the Homecoming Queen and King. This year was no different from any other year. The light rain didn't dampen the spirits of anyone as Corine Fox was crowned queen. Andy Cook was elected Homecoming king. Andy, along with several other honorees, was a member of the football team and had to forego the ceremony. Other members of the senior court included Cheryl Bruffey, Paige DeCosta, Amy Thompson, Keith Brent, Derek Burke, Will Hinshaw, and George Pufko, This night was not only the last Homecoming for the seniors but also the final official home game of the season. Homecoming was a night to remember by all.

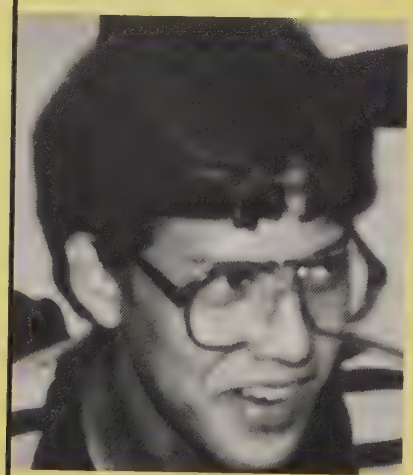
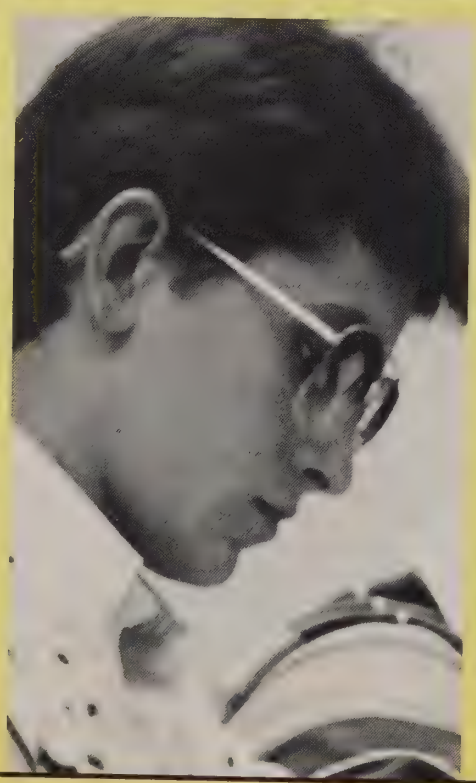
Faces In The Crowd

In a crowd there are many faces that seem to blend as one. Closer investigation of the crowd shows that each face has its own individuality. This potpourri of different talents, interests, cultural backgrounds and personalities gave MV its own distinctive personality.

Students expressed their own individualism in a variety of ways. Some joined clubs or sports that catered to their interests and others showed they were unique just by the way they dressed and styled their hair.





Even though some students felt riding the bus was degrading after the second year,it was the only reliable means of transportation. Whenever the yellow body pulled up to the street corner, one knew that school was just a few seconds away. Some students had their own cars or bikes; others had to hitch a ride with someone. Some students confessed that even though the bus was not the most luxurious ride, it was the most dependable. Parents felt a lot more comfortable when their kids were on the bus instead of a car. So no matter what other means of transportation there was, the big yellow bus ran continuously, from day to day and from neighborhood to neighborhood,transporting students to and from school.

God only knows what the bus might drag in on a cold winter's morning.

Commit To Excel

All it took was one look around after school from 2:05 to 6:00 or later to see how MV earned its victories in the field and the sports arena. One looked at the filled parking lot, the active playing fields and courts, and the classroom and saw the behind the scenes work that went into making these programs. The Mount Vernon family has taken long strides in producing the best school in the county; therefore, everyone was held accountable for his role in the progress of the student body — intellectually, physically, and emotionally. To excel in all areas of the program was encouraged.

The School Program

What makes a school program work? Who is in charge of making it work? What are the end results? The answers to these questions vary from school to school, school system to school system. Everyone generally agrees that a school program is as good as the people who implement it, support it, and use it. Therefore, the program is important in its usefulness to all students regardless of intelligence quotient, ability, interest, or talent. There were students at Mount Vernon who arrived at school later than others because of vocational training elsewhere. There were students who attended school for a full day in an academic program. Regardless, these students found their part in the school program and hitched a star to it.

Last Minute Rush

"Greaseman here. It's 7:00 and time to hobbletagee out of bed!"

To most students this was their wake-up call, the beginning of that semi-conscious ritual called morning. While in the shower, one began to degate with oneself the plain question of what to wear. Then came breakfast time. Although food at that hour seemed less than appealing, most students managed to shove down a cowl of Cap'n Crunch while spastically doing their algebra homework. On occasion, a few graduates have missed this early morning call but only a few. Most students resent it when their parents tell tem, "GET UP." After getting out of bed, showering, grabbing "break-fast," dashing for the bus or car, racing to the locker, one was usually greeted by the teacher with, "you're late again, Bub."

"It's 7:30 and where are the girls?" ask this trio of anxious guys.

A Different Stroke

Even though students were unified in many different aspects of the school program, students were respected for their individual approach to the various situations. Even administrators had to discipline students on an individual basis although rules and regulations applied to everyone. Some students allowed some things "to roll off their backs" and then there were others who "took things to heart." So the saying, "Step to the beat of your own drummer" was so apropo this year.

Just Another Excuse

"Johnny, why didn't you turn in your homework yesterday?" inquired Mrs. Wilson. "Well, uhh . . . the dog ate it!"

Although that reply is somewhat outdated, students continue with this ancient tradition of excuses. In today's more complex world, students have had to come up with a greater variety of excuses for a vast selection of reasons. Students have had to weasle out of sleeping in class, going out to lunch, and drinking coffee in the media center, to name a few.

Teachers and administrators have heard them all. "I had to work late last night; my goldfish died; I haven't had my coffee yet; I just got back from the beach," were some of the favorites.

Although teachers were frequently impressed with the creativity of the students, most efforts were made in vain. But rest assured that students will continue with this age-old high school tradition as long as there are rules to break.

You're All I Need

High school was a time in one's life to search and secure a bond with someone. When that bond was found, it was valued and no one nor anything could spoil it. As the years rolled by, their laughs, cries, and hugs became something very precious. It should be noted that not all friendships lasted the entire four years of high school. Those that survived the heartaches and the pressures of the adolescent period, truly met the test of time. After high school, everyone will go his separate way but those bonds of love and devotion will remain forever constant in the mind and the heart of friends. Other friends will be acquired but old ones will never be replaced.

High Stepping

When listening to the sound of the band and watching the members perform, one very seldom thought of the hours of long and hard practice. But it took just that for the outstanding performance of members of the marching band and flagcorps to sweep the state and national competition awards. Sometimes enough isn't said about the relationship between the directors and the high steppers. It took a lot of patience, time, and energy on both sides in order to display talent. Mr. Schoonover and Mr. Walker have put so much of their own time into the finished product that is seen on the field during football games. Another point should be made about the relationship students have with each other. Those in positions of authority got the utmost respect from their peers.

Patrice Murane's acuity goes unmatched as she directs a section of High Steppers.

Life Begins at 2:05

Those students who have seen the motion picture RISKY BUSINESS probably remembered the classroom scene when Tom Cruise waited anxiously for the last bell to ring. Just as the clock was supposed to move forward, sounding off the long awaited bell, it moved back one minute. Students sympathized with him because they knew the feeling. The good life also began at 2:05 at Mount Vernon. It was ironic watching students drag into the school in the morning and then trample over each other to get to their destination at the end of the day. Everyone always seemed to have people to see, places to go, and things to do in order to reach "the good life."

Beep Beep Here Comes Herbie!

Having a car in the 80's was essential, especially for teenagers. If teenagers weren't allowed to drive, just think of how embarrasing it would be to have your parents escort you everywhere. For the majority of freshmen this was reality. The sophomore year was the time for Driver's Ed. classes and getting a learner's permit. If they were lucky, Mom and Dad trusted them long enough to drive to Giant and back. For juniors and seniors having a car was even more important because they wanted to be on their own. With age comes responsibility and hopefully a car. Students at M.V. always had parties, dates, meetings, and practices to go to. But the main reason for having a car had to be the fear of "The Big Cheese" a.k.a. "the school bus."

Our Unsung Heroes

This year Mount Vernon's drama department has put on outstanding plays. And year after year the drama students never got the recognition that they deserved. We always heard good talk about humerous other activities. This year's past production of "Nobody Loves An Albatross" was no exception. The play featured senior Thespian James Russell as a Hollywood writer and producer who told lies to get ahead in life. Others who starred in the play were Ellen Reese, Tanya Brown, Becca Gaskin, and Patrick Price. Students who did attend the production felt it was an excellent play and they thoroughly enjoyed it. The future of drama looked well with these actors. Hopefully, more people will attend next year's performances and start to praise our drama students.

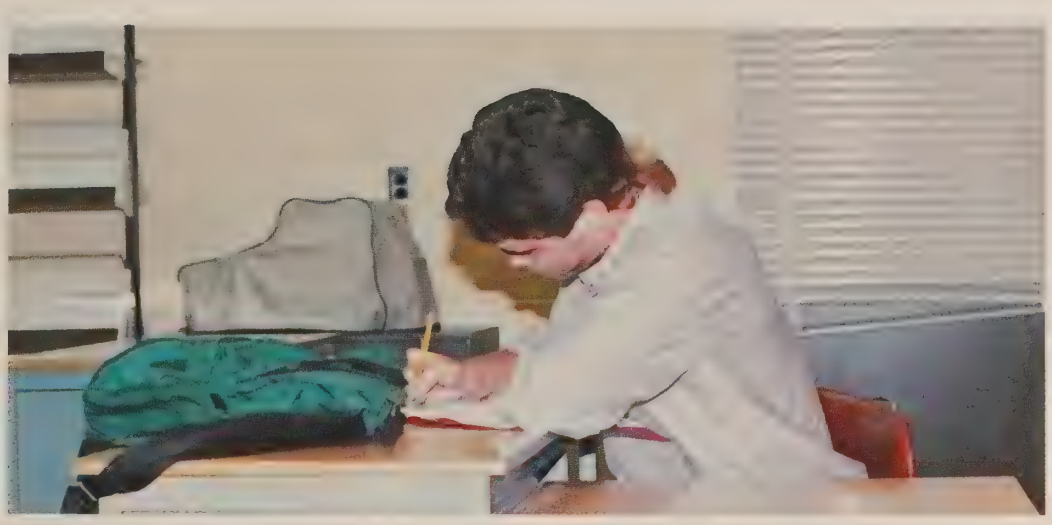
Getting Serious



With the pressures of turning in college applications and trying to bring up those lowly GPA's and SAT scores, the class of '86 rose to the challenges that they faced in the first semester of their final year of high school. SAT preparatory courses and various other methods of academic improvement were used in order to meet the minimal requirements set by colleges. But, through perseverance and plain old studying, the class of '86 came through beautifully.

Trials, Tribulations, and Success

Throughout the last four years, there have been many hard and trying times — ranging from problems with school, family, and friends. We all changed these past four years and hopefully we grew to be better persons. When we took those steps across that stage on graduation, we saw why we persevered and found success.

Senior Blahs

Looking back, looking forward, and looking out for number 1, this was the general outline for a Mount Vernon senior. After three long and hard years, one expected maybe a little relief, right? Not so. Teachers expected more and more as the years rolled on, with college applications, term papers, and projects due. We could not help but feel "under the weather." The modification of senior privileges did not help at all. Seniors wanted to know the reason but nothing was explained. The only answer was to move on. Next year, we will all be on our own in our new lives experiencing new setbacks and advances. These will carry another name but they will still be the same.

A Sad Farewell

There it was . . . our last year of high school before everything was to change. All the days of frolicking in the afternoon, all the worries of dress and homework would soon become a thing of the past. Our senior year was here at last — with it went all the wonderful memories of high school. Friday night football and basketball games, homecoming, trips to the library, and all the hundreds of memories we shared our best friends would stay as lasting memories. Many of us were happy that our high school years were over and now we would move on to bigger and better things. Just remember, though high school years were some of the best years of our lives and would hold some of our most precious memories, all good things must come to an end. Farewell to the class of 1986 and good luck to everything you do in life.

Heres to Friends

When you were inflicted with the "flu" at a weekend party — who was there by your side — your friend? When you needed a shoulder to cry on — who was there — your friend?

Friends were there for the good times and the bad times; they were there to talk with, to laugh with, and to party with. These memories, even with the realization that after graduation these relationships might not be as strong, will last forever.

Traditions

Traditions are always upheld in schools and Mount Vernon was no exception. Being involved in the many activities around school and keeping a good G.P.A. are important. Our school tried to uphold its tradition for extra-curricular and academic excellence and it has succeeded. Our senior class alone had six national merit semi-finalists and our varsity teams exemplified our excellence!

Senior Spirit

Every class is outstanding in one way or another. The senior class of 1986 shone bright with a spunk never seen before in Mt. Vernon. They had in their midst, a fellow classmate, that not only served as yell leader, but stood for Mt. Vernon spirit itself. The zeal and enthusiasm of the senior class was best exemplified by David Sneddon. Throughout the years "Big Dave" had been an inspiration to the class of '86 and had led them to be the winner of the coveted pep jug countless times. The senior class had a special aspect. David helped the class and the entire school to gain and maintain the enthusiasm for contests.

Seniors In Action

September until June, the senior class was in constant motion. Throughout the year they were busy with all the senior "blues" activities. For many, after school jobs were needed which limited free time. However, the class of '86 managed to get the job done and well. Fortunately, the year was not all work and no play. Class activities were always organized with lots of pride and excellence. Whether in school or out, the class of '86 was worthy of the title Senior.

Weekends Were Made For . . .

A senior's weekend was one that could be enjoyed in a variety of ways. There was a multitude of activities that one could experience by using one's creativity . . . or hoping someone's parents would leave town. This year's seniors engaged their weekends to the fullest. Whether they sought the adventures of the great outdoors, took a road trip to the beach, or just went domestic and explored the various forms of parties that were happening, the class of '86 didn't have to look too far to keep themselves pleasantly occupied.

Head of the Helm

What does it take to be number one? John Dinan, valedictorian of the senior class responded, "Being number one in the class gives me the feeling that I have accomplished something. I have been able to balance all of my activities and work hard enough to meet the challenges of school."

John has always been an outstanding student. He is the type of person who works hard to achieve his goals. He does so because he feels that in the long run it will pay off. Success makes John proud — something he has worked for all his life. However, John is by no means all work and no play. He is a member of the debate team and loves basketball. His one regret of high school is not pursuing the game.

John has big plans for the future. He plans to attend an Ivy league school and major in political science.

Searching for new heights!

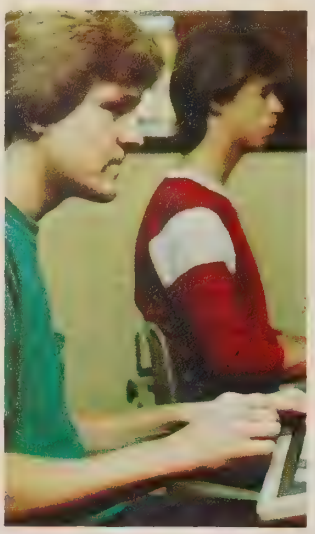
A Glimpse at the Future

With the role of computers in today's business world and the all but certain expansion of computers into the everyday needs of society, the students are getting a head start into this growing world of technical advancements. Students are taking such courses as business data processing and computer science. By starting at such a young age, those who seek a computer oriented career should take the computer age by storm.



Buddy contemplates his next move in computer chess.

Leon smiles as he searches into the school's main computer.

Knowing The Word Responsibility

The senior class of 1986 lived up to the word responsibility. They proved themselves and acted as young adults. In addition, they experienced the process of learning but also managed having fun.

Do you remember those elementary school sleep overs? Tom Davis certainly does.

Power

The officers of the junior class donated much of their time and energy into making their classmates' junior year a memorable high school learning experience. The organizational forces of the class were (Pres.) Liz Weiser; (V. Pres.) Dave Magill; and (Sec./Treas.) Chris Klein. The four senators were Dave Duffett, Jim Connor, Mary Pollard, and Kristy Swain. These diligent students organized such events as homecoming and prom.

Liz Weiser, Chris Klein, Jim Connor, Kristy Swain, David Magill, and Mary Pollard are at a stand still for a change.

Friday's Scoop

"What's going on this weekend?" was a popular question among Mount Vernon students on a common Friday. When Friday finally rolled around, finding the answer to this one question seemed much more important than the days' academic events.

The answers to this question varied. If asked during the right season, one went to a school athletic event. Someone always had a party. If all else failed, one found some sort of action at McDonalds. We did not forget the avid TV fans who skipped it all for an episode of Miami Vice.

Anna gets the scoop for the weekend from one of her buddies.

Homework Still No Cure

As the class' of '87 rounded the bend headed towards the home stretch, the academic criteria got far from easier. It is a well known fact that a student's junior year is one of the deciding factors in one's future. This is due to the increasing work load in contrast to his sophomore year. Homework is definitely by far the biggest complaint of the junior student, but it is just one of those unavoidable tasks in getting to the top.

Laurie McKean

Laurie McKean, a multi-talented junior, has excelled in sports, academics, and art. Laurie has been able to lead an active extra-curricular life and still keep up a very respectable grade point average. Her art work has been exhibited through out Mount Vernon's halls and has brought her much praise from her fellow students, faculty, and from the general community. Apart from her artistic endeavors and playing an active part in many clubs and organizations Laurie was a member of the varsity soccer team which had a respectable season. One moment to remember in Laurie's active junior year must be her participation in The Dating Game. The entire yearbook staff would like to take this time to congratulate Laurie on her achievements and continued success.

Transitional Period

Not unlike the freshmen year, the junior year was quite a transition. It was the year students become "upper classmen." Along with the change came many added responsibilities. One of them for many was getting a job. Not only was pressure increased by grades and SAT's, but at the sametime some juniors found the need to go out and earn a few bucks. Most students took this added responsibility well and went right out and found a job. Students worked at a wide variety of establishments running from the Snack Bar at Mt. Vernon Mansion to a driver for Domino's. Whatever the job, the juniors found their place in the economical world, at least for the time being.

A group of juniors can be found a lot of places rapping.

Blood and Sweat Into Homecoming

Each year the junior class is given the responsibility of Homecoming festivities. This entails much more than what seemed apparent. Judges must be found, times must be set, rules for the various competitions must be enforced and the entire Homecoming dance organized. Along with all this, the junior class was still responsible for turning out a skit, float, and wall hanging Homecoming week. To outsiders these many tasks seem to be a breeze for the class of '87. With a lot of hard work, time and group effort, the junior class managed to turn out one of the best Homecoming festivities Mt. Vernon has ever seen. At the same time the class of '87 ran away with a winning skit and float. Congratulations juniors. Your hard work paid off!

Greg Gale just can't believe that Dan Silk wants to go to Pizza Hut again.

Almost On Top

Barring the senior year, perhaps the junior year is the most anticipated by many students. Along with becoming upperclassmen comes privileges and responsibilities. Getting class rings is just one privilege that was awaited by many. The obligations included finally being able to select most of their classes and having set examples for the underclassmen. Most juniors did this well and gained the respect of the freshmen and sophomores. The juniors found it most of all a relief to be in the eleventh grade and to finally reach the upper half of the student body.

The Elected Officials Of The 1988 Class

The supreme beings of the sophomore class? No, just your humble down to earth students with a common interest in the S.G.A. It was essential for students to have a voice in the issues and policies of their school. The students representing the sophomore class were Krissy Mullen (pres.); Michelle Totten, (v.p.), and Judi Bennett (sec./tres.). Helping them were senators Greg Harris, Kaley Middlebrooks and Andrew Pollard with Mrs. Eklund as their sponsor.

The class of '88 held many fundraisers in search of "Big Bucks." Why do they need so much money? With junior year coming up much of their funds will be spent on prom. With the extra money left over they will want to depart their senior year in style.

Another Special Sophomore

If it's banging the cymbols in the marching band or talking to people at Pizza Hut, Monica Ciuca does it with style. Few know that her background is as diverse as her talents. This Italian-Peruvian descendant speaks fluent Spanish as well as play the flute and piano. Obviously, she has no problem communicating with others, and it shows in her busy social life.

Part of her appeal may be her extroverted personality. Unlike most people her age she likes to be the center of attention. It gives Monica a special feeling and also affords her the opportunity to meet new and exciting people. It looks like she has learned the secret to having a pleasant high school experience, be it social or academic.

Oblivious to her surroundings, Monica demonstrates her ability to concentrate.

The Essence of Life

Whether it was the fascinating frolics of flag-flaggelum or phormaldehyde on their fingers for lunch, biology kept our sophomores entertained. Where else could one dabble with the innards of the fetal pig, or observe the process of osmosis. No one can deny that biology class is an invaluable course offering here at school.

And what, you may ask what will these students do with their new found knowledge in biological science? "This is just a stepping stone for careers in medicine and the sciences," perks Diane Hazen. If these students choose to enroll in Bio II, they can anticipate a trip to Wallops Island with Mr. Givens. All in all biology will prove to be a fruitful experience for all. The student of today, may be the Oliver Wendell Jones of tomorrow.

Driving — A New Experience

Although most privileges come with the junior year, the sophomores were allowed a few. One of the most anticipated extras was taking driving education. Mr. Randy Slack was the classroom teacher and Mr. Fox taught the behind the wheel segment. The classroom work had to be completed satisfactorily before enrolling in Mr. Fox's class. Many second year students didn't find the time in their schedules to take the course, but those who did found it very worthwhile.

Some students wanted to take this course because this would lead to driving the family car to school in the junior year. Some students even used this course as a lead-in to convincing their parents into buying them a small car "to get around in." Whatever the reason or motive, the instructors emphasized safety above all other things in driving.

Ch-Ch-Ch-Changes
The Up and Coming Beat

High school creates many changes for the average student. They are suddenly struck by the realization of the importance of grades and their future. Study habits change and homework is more often completed than not. Aside from academic changes there are physical changes as well. The girls somewhat get prettier and the boys get taller. At times these changes can seem somewhat overwhelming. Despite the changes, students find themselves growing more independent and having a greater sense of responsibility as high school years progress.High school becomes an experience of change and transition that will aid all students throughout their lives.

Last minute studying sometimes helps.

The dreaded Monday morning.

Student Aides Everybody wants them?

Do you have a free period? Can't find an elective that interests you? What are you going to do with that free time? Many students answer these questions with being a sub school aide. You walk around school all period getting kids out of class. In actuality, being a sub school aide isn't what it's cracked up to be and there is a tremendous amount of work involved. Aides are asked to file, type, answer phones, along with a variety of other tasks. The counselors and sub school principals really kept their aides on the go. It was only after the completion of all these other duties, that they had time to pull kids from class. The sub school aides performed a real service for our school and their work was appreciated.

Relationships Putting Your Foot in the Door

When it came to relationships during the sophomore year,two things were evident: girls went out with senior guys and guys just didn't go out, unless with freshmen.Of course,this is a gross generalization but it was definitely a trait of the sophomore class.

A commom sight of the sophomore locker bank was girls applying make-up and fixing their hair, while the gentlemen huddled around the latest issue of National Geographic. "I couldn't get a date if I was Robert Redford Jr." lamented one sophomore chap.

Although it's pretty lonely being some sophomore guys, they can rest assure that their day will come. In just two short years, they will reap the benefits of being a senior, with the pick of the crop of underclassmen girls.

Taking It Easy One Day At A Time

As each year passes it seems to get more and more difficult. The junior year is known as the "killer year" so the sophomores are relaxing, so to speak, enjoying the physical education class as a break from the more difficult academic classes. The responsibilities seem to be mounting for most students and they seem to be handling it. Some sophomores get caught up in this lackadaisical state only to find their grades are not up to par with their freshman grades.

Young Ladies Lead

Dedication, brains, and a unique ability to organize the class of '89 are what made these freshmen class officers the "Right Stuff." Because of her leadership abilities, Melissa James (President) was ranked at the number one spot. Laura Sacco (Vice-President) found herself at the number two spot, because she had the talent to support the president. Jennifer Donellan (Secretary-Treasurer) filled the number three spot, because she can count to ten and repeat the alphabets. Then, the last three positions were filled by Donna Buddenhagen, Lorie Goins, and Christy Winkler who were the class senators. They were chosen because of their verbosity which enabled them to voice the class of '89's opinions. These young officers were guided by the very wise, but tough grader, Miss Oxley. These dedicated officers got the class of '89 through a very competitive homecoming. They had no problem in setting up fund raisers for their future at Mount Vernon. These are the leaders of tomorrow.

These are the foremothers of the class of '89.

The Kids Are All Right!

Though by tradition the freshmen class is thought to be on the bottom rung of the social ladder, this year's freshmen showed that this is not always so. After what could be called a lethargic start these wiley little froshes rose to meet the challenges of new responsibility, harder work, and even the social demands. As the year progressed, each student beaome an individual rather than a groupie. With a mixture of sharp discipline, and uncontrolled insanity, it is easy to see the "kids are all right!"

With sweat on their brows, these freshmen get down to work.

"89 is fine" ... even at the beginning, the freshmen class showed a lot of class spirit.

Ring-Ring, it's that time of the day again. Yes, it's lunch time. Where else can you eat until you get sick for only $.85? You couldn't help but eat until your heart was delighted with the wide variety of tantalizing entrees which included pizza, taco salad, soggy steak subs, extra greasy french fries and we can't forget the salad. With all of these delicious objects screaming, "eat me, eat me," students couldn't help but get sick from all the spicy foods, yet there were some students who never got enough. But, with all of this eating there was some complaining. Students repeated over and over that the food tasted synthetic, but we all knew it would soon pass.

The Same Old Thing

Of all the freshmen thoughts about high school life, most were sure of an improvement of the cafeteria food. The overall lunch program was a big improvement because there was a lot more freedom to move about. Although they were given a bigger variety,the quality and the taste of the school lunch didn't differ much from junior high. Most freshmen found with only two shifts in high school,verses three in junior high, the lines were much too long and at times unbearable. Some opted not to eat at all. Then there were the brown baggers who wanted to avoid the lines. Some played it safe all together and spent their lunch period in the media center doing their world history homework. It didn't take too long for the reality cafeteria style to sink in.

Mr. Robertson and Mrs. Johnson debate on the lunch menu for today.

Underclassmen are Traditionalists Freshmen Uphold

An old tradition for most schools and certainly here at Mount Vernon is to pick on the freshmen. Freshmen are set apart in a way from the rest of the student body. They're thought of as the "babies" of the school. When asked what he thought of freshmen, Senior George Pufko said, "Who?" For most part freshmen weren't treated that badly this year. Sometimes an upper classman was around to help out. When an upper classman couldn't be found there other places to turn. The teachers were always available and gave the freshmen the same kindness and courtesy they showed the upperclassmen. At times the freshmen were undeserving of their low status in the school but it was tradition and tradition can't be broken.

The Locker Bank Rush

Locker banks were again something new for the freshmen.It was the one place in the school that was designated theirs. Believe it or not the freshmen locker banks were used for a variety of reasons including a place to keep their books. Between classes it was a place to find out anything about anyone, way of gossip. During which, it was a place to complete unfinished homework and after school it was the place to find out about what everyone was doing after 2:05. Then at 4:00 when all the late buses were gone, it again became simply a place to store books, most often the books that should have been taken home for homework that night.

Just Like the Seasons We Change

Is there a difference between teachers in high school and the teachers in the junior high? Some freshmen would answer that with a big "yes!" Ninth grader, John Mastel said "they're stricter, give harder work and you don't get away with much." The things freshmen didn't realize was that it was not the teachers that had changed but the difficulty of the work. Rather than accept the fact that there was more work in high school, it was easier to assume it had to do with the teachers. The work load was just one more transition for the class of '89 and one they handled quite will in the end. Teachers expected freshmen to assume more responsibility for their work and try to balance the work load with the extra-curricular activities. It was a challenge and the freshmen survived.

Homecoming Lost In the Major Arch

Novelty for the class of '89 was Homecoming. They had a short amount of time and during that time they had more than a few things to accomplish. A lot of time and hard work was put into the float, skit, and wallhanging, and somehow by homecoming week it all came together. This was definitely a group effort made by many enthusiastic freshmen. Though they took no prizes in the homecoming contest, their hard work paid off and the freshman class was well represented in the homecoming '85.

The Untold Story

Administrators, counselors, and secretaries can finally breathe a sigh of relief. They have just completed another school year. Through the good times and bad times, they are professionals who have proven that they can be counted on.From the freshman subschool orientating its new students, to the senior subschool preparing the students for college and finalizing applications, these select few have assisted us in completing the newest chapter in our lives.

Changes in personnel, working hours, and students did not deter them from helping the students reach their full potential. For 180 days a lot of their time was devoted on things such as SAT's & PSAT's deadlines, detention slips,and parent conferences. Their expertise and personal advice helped countless students. Their jobs were not as visible as those of the teachers but they were a necessary and welcome part of school life.

English

The English department has emphasized the building up and the tearing down of the language. Through various approaches, the teachers wanted the students to analyze, verbalize,and formulate their thoughts. The study of the origin of words and different periods in history led to a better understanding of the language,past and present. Because the county placed an emphasis on writing clearly and logically,the teachers were mindful of the needs of their students on a daily basis.

Research papers, weekly compositions, essays, and journal writing were exercises in developing good writing and thinking skills. Thus, it was hoped by these dedicated teachers that a better understanding and a greater appreciation of the language made their effort worthwhile.

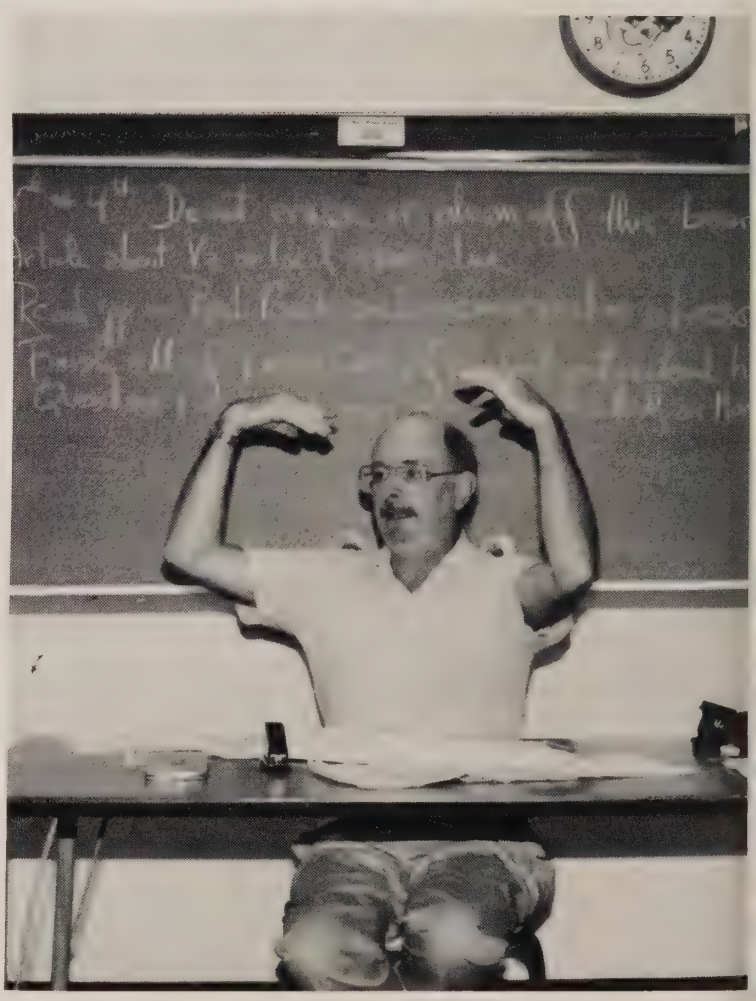
Future History Government and History

For juniors and seniors, (with a few sophomores) history or government became a reality after listening to others through the years. Talk of the Monroe Doctrine, the Constitution and Congress became the norm. Research papers on great events in history were delayed as long as possible and then finally written. Mr. Freeman's reign of terror continued. In the government department, Mr. Powell provided the best entertainment in school. The horrors of the model Congress were experienced.

Yet with all this, these classes did have their somewhat bizarre charm, and with some of the "characters" that taught them, it sometimes became downright enjoyable. In the all-consuming quest for knowledge, a fun break was a welcome change. There was a unique flavor with which government and history were taught, a style that belongs only to the teachers of Mount Vernon and this department.



Sometimes in order to maintain interest in his class, Mr. Powell throws in a little symphony conducting.

The Quest for a Foreign Language Background

For the past years, people waiting to add culture in their schedule went to the language department. In the beginning of the year, ancient Greek and modern Russian were offered on the course selection sheet. Displays were made by the French, Spanish, and German classes showing some of the culture of Europe. French II students worked on their French menus, which strengthened their command of the language while bolstering their understanding of foreign culture and food. French III students moved into some of the more advanced grammatical areas. Literature was explored in-depth by the AP French IV and V classes. Perhaps with the increase of foreign language students, international harmony can be achieved. These students are no longer just plain Americans. They are ambassadors to the world, who can lead us to a greater relationship with foreign countries. Never before has the language department played such a vital role in shaping America's future.

Working For The Future Giving Them The Business

The great world of modern technology has grown during the past four years. Do you remember Typing I? How tired the wrist and fingertips became after endlessly pounding the keys. The practice enabled us to learn well, and then we progressed to the electric typewriter. We experienced the wonderful feeling of tireless wrists and fingertips. Then we came to the sensational use of data processing. Don't you feel proud when you receive the cancelled checks and you balance your checkbook in twenty minutes? Yes, we can use the techniques that we learned in accounting and business classes. We value the excellent knowledge passed to us from the expertise of the business department teachers.

The marketing department assisted students in finding jobs. The students were given credit for the marketing class if they maintained the job for the duration of the school year. This course was taught by experienced teachers who knew what job was well suited for what student. A lot of students maintain their jobs after graduation.

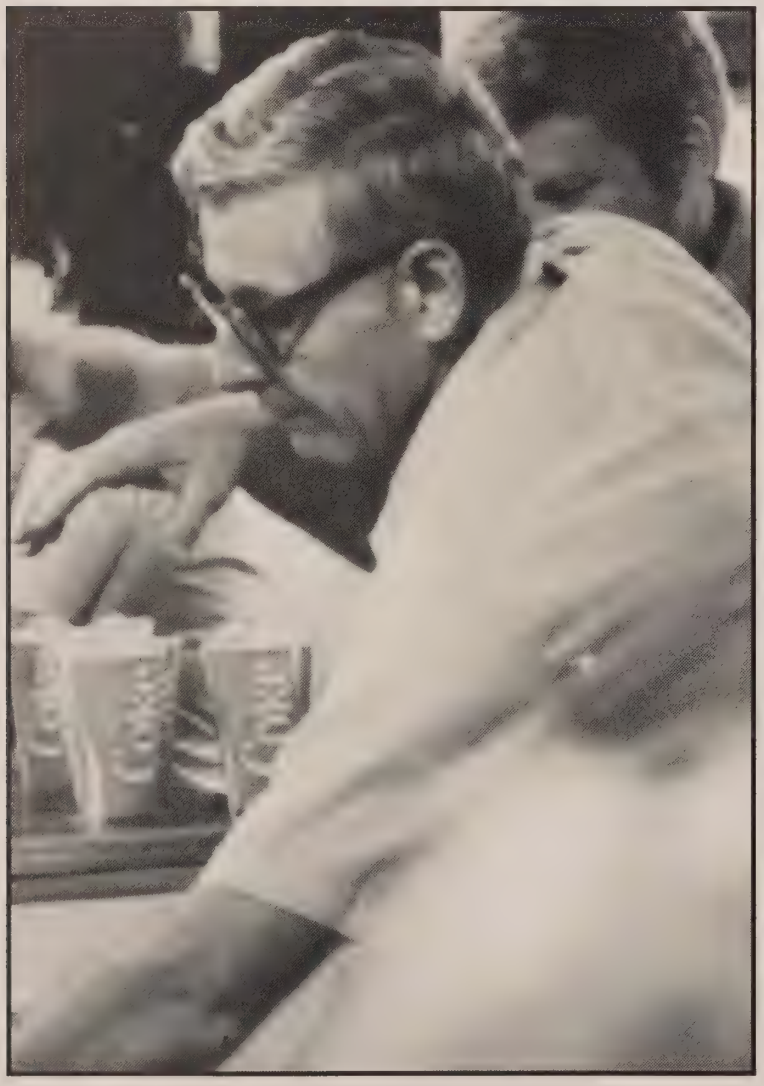
Athletic Boosters Mr. Tepper, The man in the middle

It has been seven years since Elliott Tepper has served as president ofour Athletic Boosters Club. He was elected president by membership and since then has accepted massive responsibilities for our athletics. The purpose of our athletic boosters is pretty self-explanatory. It is to boost our athletes' morale and Mr. Tepper along with other boosters and dedicated parents do exactly that. They involve themselves in every athletic event here at Mount Vernon. Most of the parent boosters sell refreshments at the concession stand while others, like Mr. Tepper, worked on things like the programs for the football games, ordering shoes for the basketball teams, and arranging team pictures. In addition to being outstanding boosters, they also gave great support. Mr. Tepper was a great asset to Mount Vernon athletics. He along with other key boosters such as Secretary — Carol Baber, Treasurer — Ed Gould, Donna Facey, Barbara Cotter, Brenda Reasley, and Lisa Hinshaw did everything in their power to make our athletics a big success.



"Coke is it" is a real saying as Mr. Stallman fills them up.

I can't talk to you right now says Mr. Cook. I have to deliver a coke.

Facilities manager David Hamilton prepares the football field for the game.

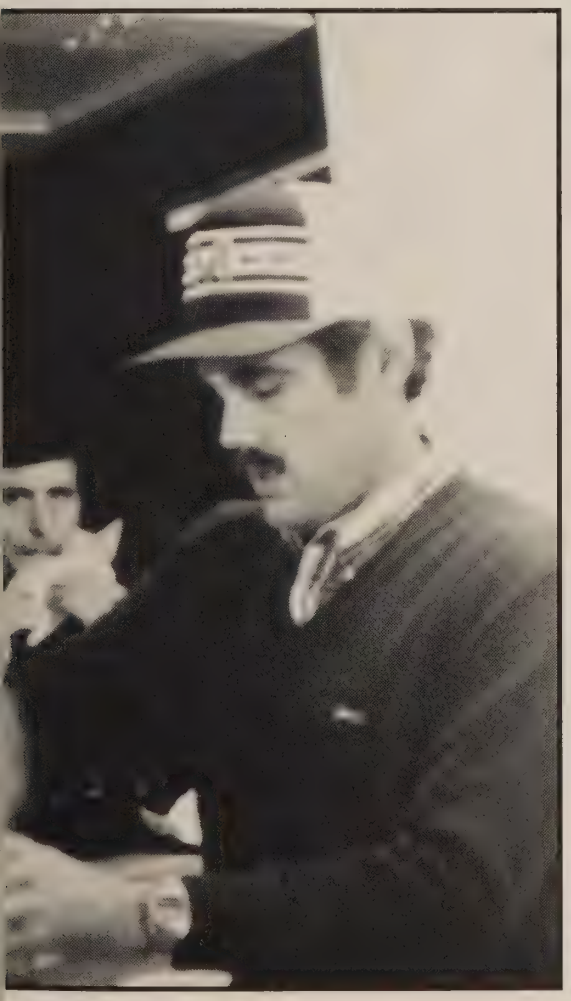
QUOTES

"Our objective is to provide whatever support is necessary, either through volunteer services or fund raising activities, to maintain and continue Mount Vernon's tradition of Sports Excellence."



Total concentration in pouring a diet coke is a must; Mr. Hanney displays his many hours of practice.

Championship Game Doesn't Tell True Story

Varsity Football

You may have asked yourself, why did a team with the best record in the district, not have a seat in the regional games? Well, there's only one answer. It's the Northern Virginia High School League Power Point System. This System is used when two or more teams tie for a seat in a playoff. The Power Point System works like this: for each game the Majors won they received twelve points plus rider points (points the other team has accumulated in beating other Northern Virginia High School League teams.)

This year the majors lost their seat in the regionals by .22 of one point, to West Potomac.

But that .22 of a point doesn't mean that the Majors didn't work hard. First, the team went to football camp over this past summer. Secondly, while we were in our beds sleeping in the wee-wee hours of the morning, the Majors were out practicing for the upcoming season. Next came the after school practices which lasted up to three hours. All this work did pay off in making the Majors by far, the most superior team in Virginia.

The Majors finished with a

Varsity Cheerleading A Commitment to Excellence

The Mount Vernon (Varsity) cheerleaders have worked extremely hard this year to improve our school spirits. Pep rallies and banners were utilized to liven up our dreary school. With each new sport, the cheerleaders were given secret pals to improve their morale.

Throughout the year, you could find the girl and guy cheerleaders practicing old and new cheers after school. What you don't know is that the dedicated cheerleaders worked hard during the summer, with early morning practices and even attending a cheerleader camp in Ashland, Virginia. Under the sponsorship of Ms. Gayle Deaton, the cheerleaders hope to keep the Mount Vernon School spirit in the clouds.

All Guts, No Glory
Freshman and Junior Varsity Cheerleading

Beginning with tryouts and throughout the summer, these two squads, freshman and j.v. cheerleaders, have worked to achieve perfect timing and precision, along with making up new cheers.

The junior varsity squad had many of the old freshman cheerleaders return, which was a plus. One of the "old" new J.V. cheerleaders said, "The summer practices were the hardest parts of cheerleading because it was then that we learned all the new cheers and got everything together." But as anyone who has seen these cheerleaders cheering, can see that those summer practices have paid off.

The j.v. squad helped the new freshman ones in learning new cheers as they were coming into their first year of high school. These eight girls worked hard and by the end of the summer they had learned all the cheers needed for the football season at least.

Even though the bleachers were empty a lot, these two squads kept their enthusiasm and spirit alive. Good luck to all the girls in the class of '88.

A Winning Season
Junior Varsity Football

Junior varsity football teamstarted its 85 season off with a bang. They held record of 5 and 2 giving up victories only to R.E. Lee and Mt. Vernon's arch rival West Potomac. Along with the superb coaching of Mr. Bendorf and Mr. Jones the J.V. team came through with flying colors. The outstanding leadership of the various team captains helped the junior varsity players pull together as a team and show their opponents everything they had. Congratulations to the j.v. team on a great season and a job well done.

Freshman Football

Although the freshmen did not remain undefeated as in past years, they still showed Mount Vernon an outstanding season. With the excellent coaching of Mr. Randy Slack and team effort the freshmen team came through with a superb record of 5 and 2 losing only to Oakton and Edison. Although the freshmen didn't meet the expectations they held for themselves,they were pleased with the outcome of the season. These freshmen will prove one day to be outstanding varsity players.

Field Hockey Fever

Girls Varsity and JV

Participation in girls' sports has always been extremely low, especially in girls' field hockey. This year was the largest number of turnouts for the teams. Cuts were made, that was something that was unheard of three years ago. Many first year players tried out,but even with being a young team they did better than ever. Captain Amy Symms said, "this year the team seemed to be closer as friends than in past years." This was true. The girls just didn't play hockey together, they were friends. Some of the girls even went camping together. There was even a new face on the hockey field, Coach Glenda MacNeil,the new JV coach. As the hockey teams'records improve, the Majors can only hope so will the number of fans.

Cross Country Caught It

Boys' and Girls' Track

Both girls' and boys'cross country teams had an exceptional year.The girls' team caught the district title with the boys not far behind catching second place in the district. The girls also placed tenth in the region. Training started at the end of last year with captains Kim Spence and Scott Cook. The rest of the team was right behind them, with their beginning in the HOT summer months. Included in their summer training, the cross country team went to Camp Varsity, a week of intense training. This year was different from the previous years not only because of the new coach, Charles Brown, but the girls trained arm and arm with the boys. Next year, the Majors will be losing two key runners, Kim Spence and Scott Cook. Although with the success of this year's team, we are looking forward to next year being just as strong.

Golf

Winning Isn't Everything

Although the Majors couldn't claim any championship titles, they had nothing to be ashamed of. Coming in third behind West Potomac and Hayfield, the two power house teams in the district. The Majors still played well all season, losing their only two matches to those two teams. Team unity was a big part of the Majors success, another addition to to the teams success was sophomore captain Steve Clary. He placed in the districts and advanced to the regionals, only to lose a tough match. Although in a sport such as golf where experience matters over age, David Barker along with four other seniors, Jon Propps, Chuck Obermeyer, Chris Fish, and Clay James provided leadership for the younger golfers. Being a young team, we can only look for season next year.

"It's Casual"

This was the motto of the girls'tennis team. They chose that motto because they were playing with the intentions of doing the best that they could and have fun at the same time. The Majors had good and strong sets eventhough they lost the majority of their matches. They were coached by Gloria Avila, who coached both the girls' and boys' tennis teams for the first year. Coach Avila was also the mom of senior captian Michelle Avila. She enjoyed coaching both teams and is looking forward to coaching Mount Vernon tennis in the future yeaars. Michelle Avila and junior Susan Stillwell were the number one/two players on the team; they also were team captains. Michelle,a four year tennis player, achieved a personal goal when she defeated an Edison opponent that had beaten her every time since they were sophomores. COMPETITION STIFFENS

BOYS' VARSITY BASKETBALL

In the past, district play has been sort of easy for the majors, as they've ruled the district for the last four years, but this year things were different. The competition appeared a lot more talented and better coached than in previous years. Despite this, the Majors had a good season with a district record of 8-2; the majors suffered their only two losses to Hayfield. They were on top of the district for the whole first half of the season. For the second half they shared the second place honors with Hayfield. Both teams advanced to the finals of the district championship with identical records. Hayfield won the district final, 63-65. The first time in four years, the Majors settled for second place. The team had to say good-bye to several outstanding seniors: Captains Sean Andrews and Tag Entwisle, Andre Springs, Jon Terry, Al Henson, and June Redfearn. The entire school will never forget Sean Andrews'score during the last second of a regional game against Chantilly to win the game.

ON THEIR WAY TO THE TOP

JUNIOR VARSITY BOYS' BASKETBALL

Unity was the key to success for the junior varsity boys this year. They displayed their talent both on the court and in the classroom. They were ever so mindful of the academic eligibility requirements set up by the state.

Led by sophomores Greg Beal and David Taylor, the j.v. team captured the Gunston District title, by defeating Robert E. Lee. Team work was evident when a fan looked at all the contributions that were given by all of the team members. Their attitude,as well as, their talent proved that they were the best in the district.

The Young Ones Prevail

Freshmen Boys' Basketball

Freshmen basketball is always thought of a pre-training sport for the upcoming varsity years. This year's team displayed a great deal of talent. The team won the district title. This year's coach, Mr. Beal, did an outstanding job in organizing this team. The future varsity team demonstrated a lot of hard drive and determination.

A Tough Season

Girls' Varsity Basketball

The Major girls had a challenging season. It was a pretty hard act to follow — last year's successful season. Despite the loss of several key players, the team pulld and pushed themselves and each other for the honor of being the Gunston District champions. Basketball is a team sport, unlike swimming, tennis, and track; therefore, the girls truly believed in "the one for all, and the all for one" philosophy. Although it took a good portion of the season for things to click, these Majors showed with a little determination and a lot of team spirit, victory can be a basket away.

QUALITY NOT QUANTITY

Basketball Shrinks For Girls

This year a major change took place for the lady basketball players. The basketball was cut down in size by one inch in total circumference. At first it was an upset to most of the girls but the size resulted in higher scoring and faster moving games. This just added to the excitement of this fast pace game.

Even Coach Patrick was impressed by the extra control the girls had of the ball this year. He said he wouldn't be surprised if the little league teams decided to use the smaller ball.

The ball did not affect the majors season as it was supposed to, it only added to the ability of the majors. Next year the adjustment should be handled even better.

Look at the size difference, a whole inch!

THE NEW KID IN TOWN

Miss Rogers' Neighborhood

Her name is Elizabeth Rogers. She happens to be the 2nd leading scorer in the Gunston District. She's also the "New Kid in Town"

Everyone knows it's tough moving to a new school, not to mention as a senior. Your senior year has got to be one of your best years ever. Well, this small town girl moved here, from Lebanon, Penn. last summer only to start the year off right. Elizabeth was one of the Majors key players on the Girls' Varsity Hockey team. She said, "that was not one of my best years in hockey. I've had better." Even if it wasn't, she sure impressed us. Elizabeth's year didn't end there. It was off to basketball. This year to make the team one had to run a mile and a half in 12 minutes. Elizabeth was the first one across the finish line. This was a great start for the season. The season went well for Elizabeth; she was the leading scorer for her team and second leading scorer in the district. Elizabeth averaged 15 points for the season. She had many games with points totaling over 20. If you didn't recognize her face her number was twenty-two and she was hot. Elizabeth also showed great defensive skills; sometimes this caused this little lady to foul one time too many. This didn't stop her. She was fired up and ready to go for the next game.

Sports are a big part of Elizabeth's life but most important to her are her grades. During season and out of season she maintained a very high grade point average. Being a top notch honor roll student, Elizabeth managed to graduate at the top of her class. Even though she was able to balance her schedule in the fall and winter Elizabeth decided to take the spring off in order to prepare to attend college at the University of Arizona.

The Road To Perfection

Girls' Junior Varsity Basketball

The girls of the junior varsity basketball team, through hustle and determination, clearly showed that they were out to win.

The team practiced everyday except on game days. On days of a game, the girls would anxiously await the start of the game, so they could go out and kill the other team. The team had a lot of talent and the varsity team next year should be outstanding.

Track and Field

Running, jumping, and throwing to the sounds of success, the track and field team showed its extraordinary talent this year by placing second in the Gunston District. The girls' track team was undefeated in the regular season and was edged out of the District title by West Potomac by only five points. Kim Spence, Jeannie Burris, Ed Cunningham and others performed exceptionally well in their given events. Mike Wilson surprised us all by placing second in the nation in the long jump. VARSITY WRESTLING

Wrestling With Pride

The wrestling team may not have been a state power but the team showed a lot of pride along with improvement. It went through a lot of pain and suffering in order to build a winning team. Along with regular practice sessions, the majority of the team lifted weights so they could overpower their opponents. The team was led by Alex Garrett(22-6-1) and Anthony Starkey (25-3), Derek Burke was fifth in state (24-7). The team placed second in the district under the guidance of Coach Brian Taylor and assistant coach Rob Sanders. With their help and patient assistance, the team gained a vast knowledge of wrestling.

What A Team! Girls Gymnastics

The air in the gym is thick with the smell of years of waxing and the sweat of competition. Mixed in at this moment is a drifting chalky dust which coats the athletes' throats and makes their breathing somewhat shallower. The gymnast steps up to begin her routine on the uneven bars. She signals that she is ready and prepared to do her mount. What races through the clockwork of her mind at this moment, what will be her last thoughts as she leaps and grasps the chalky wooden bars which will, for the next few moments, become a part of herself?

No one knows what a gymnast feels or thinks, only that gymnast.

Gymnastics is an individual sport being played as a team sport in high school leagues. It is an interesting twist. The girls would like to perform at their personal best, but at the same time to act as a team member and direct their skills towards a team win.

This year the majors had enough team wins to become the Gunston District Champions. In the district meet each member of the team displayed awesome skills and gymnastic abilities.

Julie Gilbert, a senior, showed her skills by placing in the top three in each of the events.

Jump To It

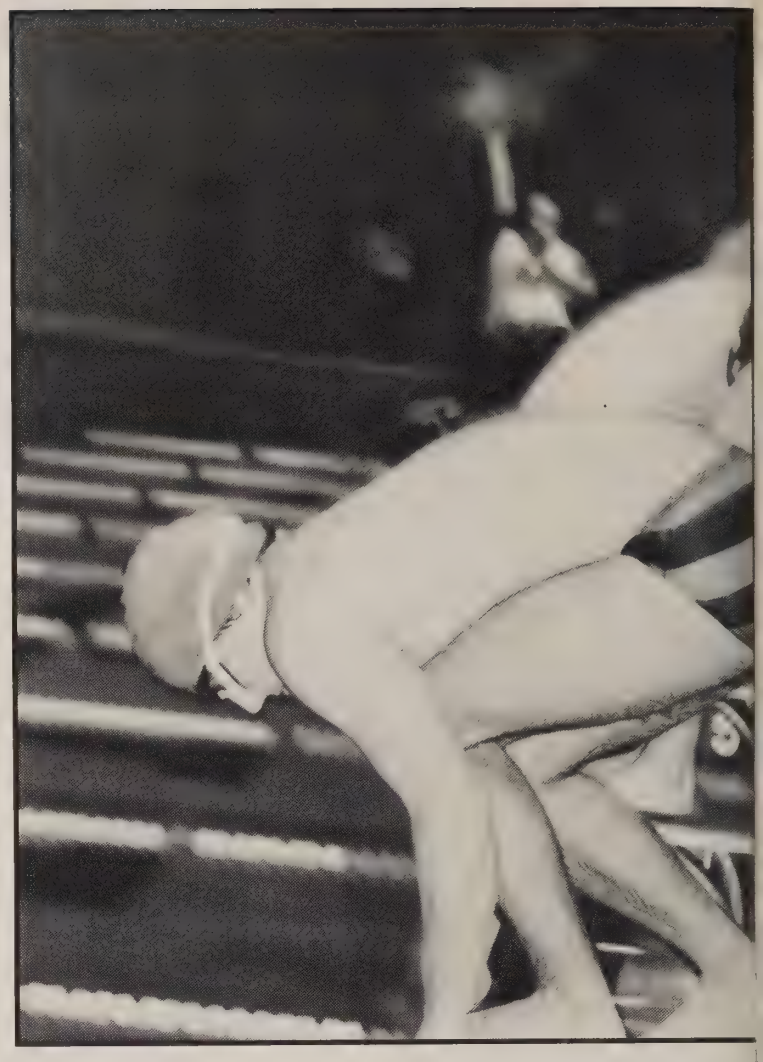
Swimming and Diving

The swimming and diving team this year came into the season as defending district champions, both the boys and the girls teams. In the end of the season the boys team came out for the second year in a row, winning the Gunston district title. As for the girls team, after a hard struggle against our arch rivals, West Potomac; the West Potomac girls ended up defeating our girls.

But as told, the boys team was a different story, they beat W.P. boys in both duel meets and especially, where it counted most, in the district meet, once again.

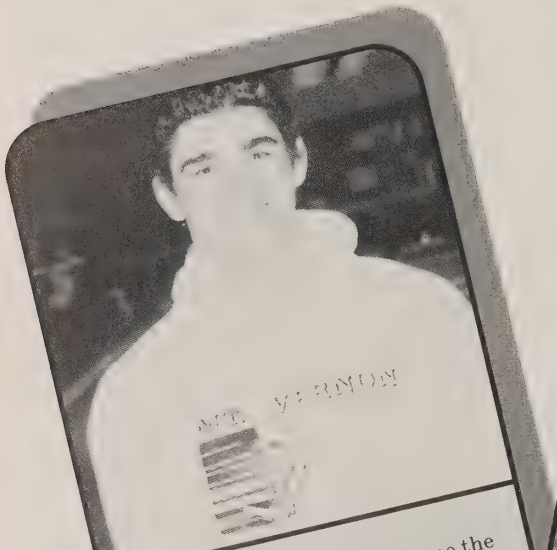
The Majors swimming and diving team had many individual first places and many of those people placed in the Regional meet.

By the end of the Regional meet, the M.V. boys placed fifth and the M.V. girls placed seventh.

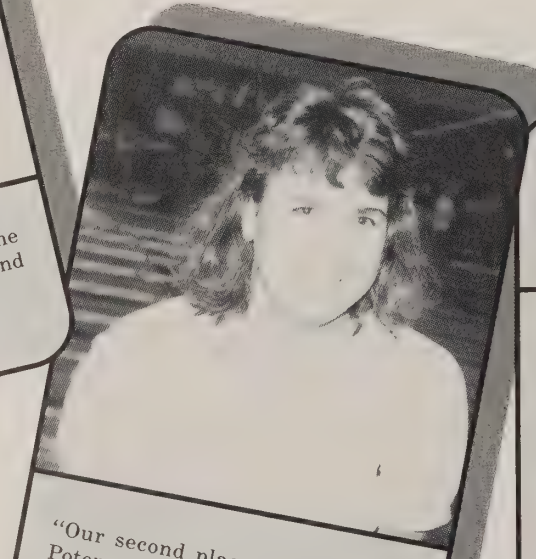


Tom Davis prepares to leap into action.

Go! . . . Susan Huerman knows the only way to fly.



"That Dave Letterman gave me the idea for the Alka-Seltzers suits, and the rest was history."



"Our second place finish to West Potomac, did not reflect upon all our hard work this season."

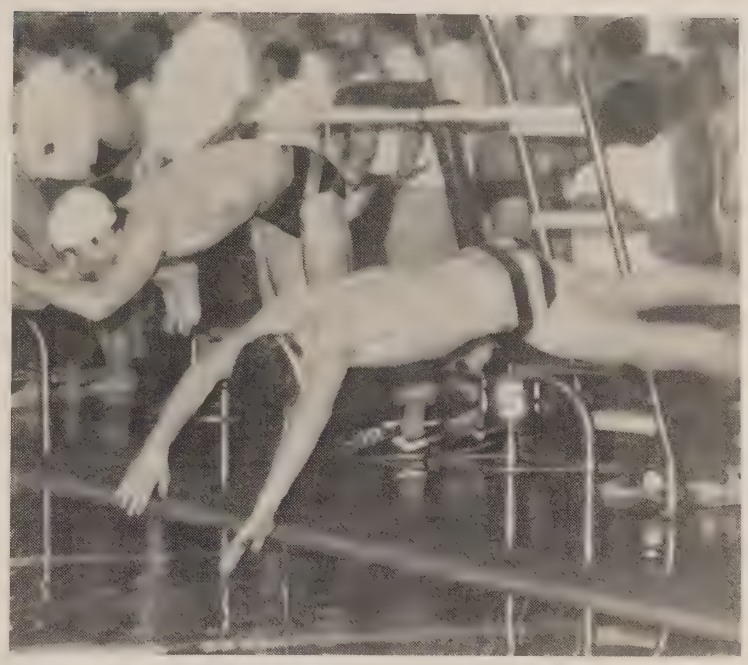
On Your Mark!!

Swimming and Diving

One may think that the people on the swim team have all fun and games and practice, but those swimmers have an entire hour of almost nonstop swimming, with intervals giving a swimmer only five seconds rest before another sprint or before the next 500 yards of butterfly.

Almost half of the boys' team and some of the girls team get up at 4:30 A.M. to swim on their USS teams, rush home to change and then rush to school.



Then after school they go to their USS practice or to their high school practice.

So those of you who think swimming is just all "fun and games" had better think again. Both the boys and the girls worked very hard this season and it can be seen by looking at the district scoreboard: M.V. boys 1st place, M.V. girls 2nd place. CONGRATULATIONS TO THE MAJORS SWIMMING AND DIVING TEAMS!!!

Larissa Lewis stretches for a good start.

Just a little more ... Rusty Wood reaches for a burst of energy.

Spring Has Sprung!!

In spite of the flowers blooming, the temperature soaring, and the heart dancing, a group of talented athletes jumped, pitched, and ran their way through the spring months. For several hours each day, the coaches and the players turned their backs on the things that others fancied. They were led to locker-rooms and fields or courts of play.

Because of yearbook deadlines, the athletes who participated in spring sports are not featured as other fall and winter sports' participants. The most important thing to remember is that these young men and women contributed just as much to the school program as anyone else and they dedicated their time and energy as well. Unfortunately, due to circumstances beyond their control, there are no scoreboards or action shots in the yearbook. The staff would like to take this time to recognize the coaches and the players for an outstanding performance this year and continued success in the future.

MATH TEAM — students are selected to participate in various contests within the state and county areas. Aptitude and speed are necessary in making for a winning team. The advisor spends a lot of time drilling the students in various math areas in order to have good standing in the county. Students benefit from the competition by increasing their math skills and endurance.

JR. MATH TEAM — students in the lower grades usually have interest in the math team. They are singled out early in the year as math team contestants. They,too, have a high math aptitude and interest in mathe related fields.

MATH HONOR SOCIETY — students who maintain a high grade point average in mathe are permitted to join the honor society. One can usually find these same students on the math teams. Certain math courses are required before membership is accepted.

Latin Honor Society — students who have completed at least two years of Latin and have maintained a certain grade point average are eligible to participate in the honor society. Toga parties and other activities are a part of this organization.

Places to Fellowship

Fellowship of Christian Athletes — otherwise know as FCA. Provides opportunity for athletes to come together and share their christian fellowship. Activities range from Bible studies, retreats, and singing to volleyball.

Fellowship of Jewish Athletes — You didn't have to be Jewish to join the federation of Jewish Athletes,but it sure didn't hurt! The FJA flourished in its second year of existence, with increased membership and notoriety. This organization provided an outlet for Jewish culture and tradition. Members participated in various sporting events, such as croquet, stickball, soccer and softball. Last year they disspelled the myth that Jewish people aren't athletic by defeating the Fellowship of Christian Athletes 14 - 3 on the softball field. Among the highlights of their year was the annual FSA Hanankkah Celebration. The party was a rousing success and ended with the traditional lighting of the menorah.

Mount Vernon Marching Majors

The Year of Excellence

There's only one word that properly described the Mount Vernon Marching Majors and that was "Excellence". The Marching Majors had their best season of the decade. They took first place and Grand Champions in every compition (including the win over Lake Braddock). Among those titles they were State AAA Champions. The Marching Majors started working at the end of the summer and all season to give us the best show possible. And that they did! This spring they traveled to Florida to represent the state of Virginia and did an excellent job. The Marching Majors were ranked as one of the best bands on the East Coast. Although the Marching Majors are losing a lot of seniors this year. The student body looks forward to next year being just as great.

The Yearbook Staff Deadlines and More Deadlines

With only the most professional outlook on the world of journalism, this year's yearbook staff achieved feats which were previously considered impossible. Like a well oiled machine, the staff managed to meet every challenge despite publication problems with the new company. Twenty of the staff's spreads were lost and several of the computer disks were erased. We wanted to cry many times. Tara Schulte, the editor-in-chief, made sure that no job was too wacky in shepherding the staff through the crisis. Under the supervision of their illustrious and overly qualified advisor, Toni Phelps, the staff managed to maintain the outstanding quality of photojournalism students have come to expect at Mount Vernon High School.

Sit-In For

Students practice for sit-in.

This year Mount Vernon experienced the sit in. It was all precipitated by the Fairfax Education Association work to the rule regulation. This rule went into effect this school year. The entire event centered around teachers' salaries. The teachers felt their pay was not comparable to others around the country. And so, the era of the rule was ushered in. Not only would teachers go home at 3:05 on Mondays and Fridays, and 3:30 on days in between, but the media center would also be closed at 4:00. Mount Vernon students were shocked and angered by this action. They felt that they would be the one to suffer most from the loss of teacher availability after hours. Other schools in the Fairfax County area decided to protest the rule by staging a student sit-in. The faculty of these schools took no part in

Students Relieve Hunger

Although it was no Live Aid, Mount Vernon participated in an African fund raising campaign. The Fairfax County Board of Supervisors organized a raffle for Fairfax county public schools to participate in. The campaign was called "Fairfax County Kids for Kids Against Hunger."

A representative from each school that decided to participate was educated about the current famine situation in Africa and learned what could be done to help the hungry. This representative received books of raffle tickets to distribute to other students, who sold door to door.

The money raised by the raffle was put into a fund and was eventually used to supply food, medical supplies, and education to those who are suffering from the effects of the drought in Africa.

"At the outset of this project, I expected to be met with apathy and lack of participation, I couldn't have been more wrong," commented Mount Vernon representative Pete Nedzbala.

Teachers

this action. News of this reached stations like WAVA 105 FM and WBMW B106 and these stations encouraged the students to stage the sit-in throughout the county. The event was planned to take place at 12:00. Mount Vernon students heard about it, and some of them decided to take part in it. At 12:00 at the senior locker bank, a group of about 20 students sat, while many more students milled about in confusion and chaos. This was supposed to be happening all across the county. Afterwards, no one was really sure if the sit-in did any good, while some of the teachers actually thought that it was counter productive. In any case, the students of Mount Vernon proved to the teachers that they cared about what happened to them.

Open Campus?

Judging by the enormous number of students who go out for lunch illegally, it is more than obvious that this is something that the students truly want and deserve. As outlined in this article, open campus during lunch is perfectly feasible. It is now up to the county to have a little faith in its students.

By either conviction or tradition, students of Mt. Vernon have been ardently requesting for an open campus during their lunch period (allowing them to leave school grounds for lunch). The cries, for the most part, have been to no avail. The county school board needn't answer the students with the example of '81.

In 1981, Fairfax County introduced something called "senior privileges." The only significant privilege that seniors were granted was the ability to check themselves out, that is allowing them to go out for lunch. The results were somewhat of a disaster. Senior absentees reached record proportions, especially for those classes following lunch. As you may have guessed, "senior pivileges" only survived that one trial year.

The disaster of '81" was five long yers ago; it is now time to approach the situation with the knowledge that was gained from that infamous year. It is clear that students (even seniors) are not responsible enough to be allowed to check themselves out of school, but students aren't asking for that. They just want to go to McDonald's for lunch. The county argues it will result in students skipping their classes after lunch.

Good reasoning, but there's a simple solution; allow students to go out to lunch. Those caught skipping classes will have their privileges recinded for a determined amount of time. It may also be necessary for students to have a parent or guardian to sign a form that relieves the school of any responsibility of the students while not on school grounds.

Pep Jug Scandal

Bruised hearts and bruised spirits exemplified the spirit here at school. For the first time ever, our most beloved Pep Jug was stolen, twice in one year. As a result, the yearbook staff spared no expense to bring you the details.

Item: November, the "Wonder Jug" disappears. Mysterious circumstances surround the return of said item a few weeks later, with incriminating pictures.

Item: January, once again, it is heisted, whereabouts unknown, but another barrage of pictures arrive.

Item: Both sets of photographs were invariably tied to this year's yearbook staff.

After much deliberation and, a budget to match Paul Schaeffer's optometrist bill, we have come to a conclusion. Joe Strummer did it.

ENTERTAINMENT
LIVE AID DISPLAYS POWER OF MUSIC

Live Aid was dubbed "the biggest pop event ever staged over a one-day period," by organizer Bob Geldof. The statistics more than backed up his claim.

On July 13th, sixty-one of rock's biggest acts performed in two mammoth outdoor stadiums, one in London and the other in Philadelphia. The concert had a radio and television audience of over 1.5 billion people. $65 million was raised for African famine relief.

The concert displayed the enormous power of rock and roll music to inspire and communicate. Many said that the project was too large and complex to even get off the ground. Geldof (of the Boomtown Rats) had no intentions of letting cynics get in his way. The concert went remarkably smooth with excellent sound, broadcast, accommodations, and transportation. Of course the event was not without scandal or complications. Relatively minor technical problems and the egos of the artist were only small problems for Geldof. After the concert he commented that the project cost him six months sleep and a sprained back.

Although hunger was on everyone's mind, the audience was more concerned with the music.

Fans at the show and at home saw their most hoped for rock and roll dreams come true. The Who reunited for a four song, earth-shaking set; Robert Plant and Jimmy Page also reunited Led Zeppelin with Phil Collins on drums and members of Power Station. Fresh from a London set with Sting, Collins flew to Philadelphia, a la concorde, also backed up Eric Clapton. Mick Jagger and Tina Turner delivered a seethingly hot "State of Shock". George Michaels of Wham!, dueted with Elton John. The concert saw veteran rock performers of the sixties (Bob Dylan, Joan Baez, the Beach Boys) mix with heavy metal rockers of the seventies (Black Sabbath, Queen) and trendy pop stars of the eighties (Madonna, Spandau Ballet, Thompson Twins).

"The Power Station" one of the offsprings of the successful group Duran Duran.

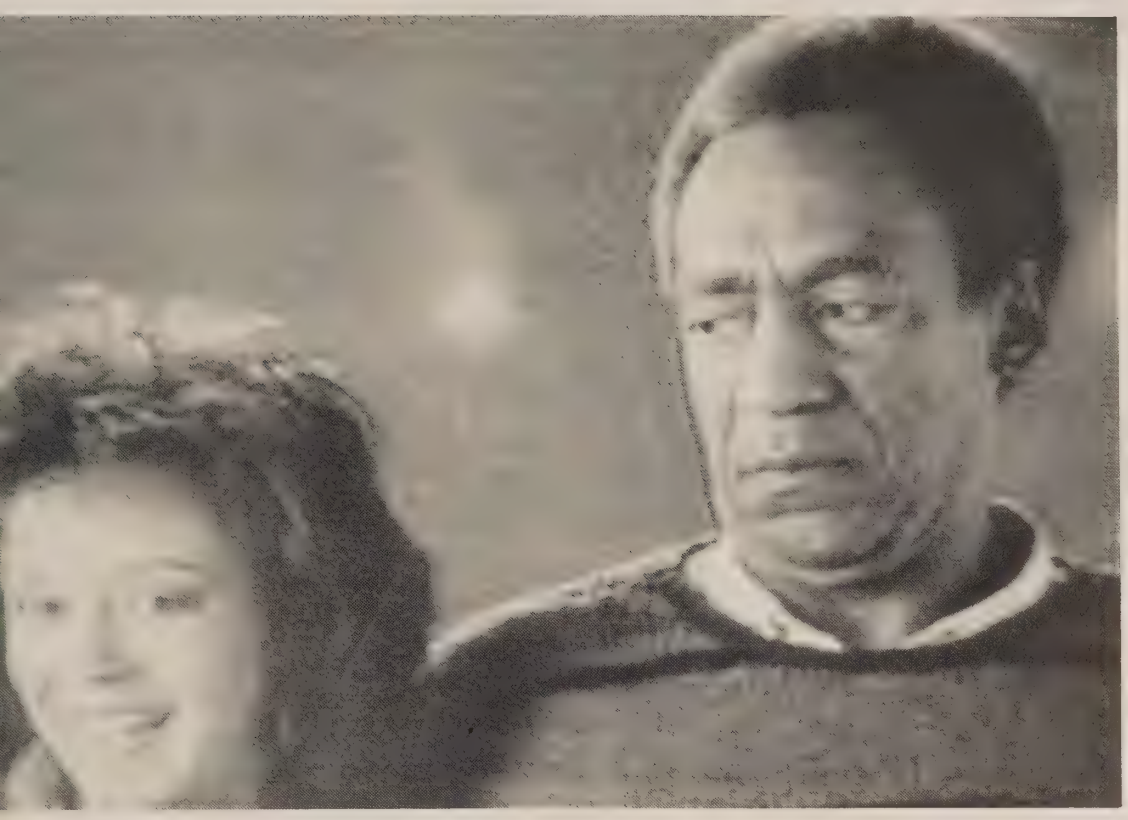
COSBY REVIVES SITCOM



While some movies flew this year others flopped. A few movies this year that were loacking were "A Chorus Line," "Clue," "Police Academy Part II," and Jamie Lee Curtis and John Travolta's "Perfect." Goldie Hawn's "Protocol" and "Pee Wee Herman's Big Adventure" did not do well either. Chevy Chase's "European Vacation" left a bit to be desired.

Summing up a year in the movies, taking the good without overlooking the bad, this year proved in the end to be quite average.

The show that revised the sit-com. Starring Bill Cosby and his T.V. daughter Sabrina LaBeauf.

MOTION PICTURES THE YEAR IN REVIEW

As in previous years, 85-86 provided the public with a wide variety of movies. Movies for the young, movies for the old, and movies that could be shared by both. Many of the films were for adult audience. These movies were most popular among students. "The Breakfast Club" with Molly Ringwald and Anthony Michael Hall was a huge success. "St. Elmo's Fire" with Rob Lowe, Ally Sheedy, and Emilio Estevez was a big success with the teenage audience. The blockbuster of the year was Michael J. Fox's "Back to the Future." It also grossed the most money. A newcomer on the scene was Madonna, making her dramatic debut in "Desperately Seeking Susan" with Rosanna Arquette.

What would the year in movies be like without a flick from James Bond and Rocky? Roger Moore gave us "A View to A Kill" while Stallone picked a more original title for his film, "Rocky IV." This year was a busy year for Stallone in that he also had the action packed "First Blood; Rambo Part II."

The more mature audience had quite a few movies to select from. Some of them being "The Cotton Club" with Richard Gere, "Witness" with Harrison Ford, Sissy Spacek in "The River," Sally Fields in "Places in the Heart" Sam Shepard and Jessica Lange in "Country," and Jeff Bridges in "Jagged Edge." This just begins the list of movies specifically for the mature audiences.

A new feather in NBC's plume that continues to stand out is "The Cosby Show", which debuted in the fall of 1984. Some people believed that the family sit-com had died, but "The Cosby Show" revived it. The show depicts the everyday life of the Huxtable family. The show's popularity can be largely attributed to the ability of viewers to see themselves reflected in the actions of the Huxtables. An example of this was when Denise (Lisa Bonet) got her driver's license and her first car; another example was when twelve year old Vanessa (Tempestt Bledsoe) fell in love for the first time.

There was a debate over whether or not "The Cosby Show" represented the typical black family, with Bill Cosby as an obstetrician and Phylicia Ayers-Allen as a lawyer. The stars of the show, however, felt that the fact they are black is not relevant to the show's objective. To them the Huxtables are not a Black-American family, but an American family that just happens to be black.

"The Cosby Show" continues to be number one, but it has provoked competition from other networks. CBS created a similar show, "Charlie and Company" starring Flip Wilson and Gladys Knight, but it has not matched the success of the Cosby's.

"Dennis the Menace" is an example of timeless entertainment for all generations.

A Classic Comeback

New Coke or Old Coke? This was perceived as the biggest marketing blunder in 1985. One of the largest corporations, Coca-Cola decided that it was time America had a new taste of Coke. So a different formula was created and placed on the market. People all around D.C. were given the New Coke for a taste test. Many of them felt it resembled the cola-rival Pepsi. Some liked it a lot more and others positively despised it. The last cases of Old Coke were selling for a mere $1,000 but the madness had just begun. America wanted the Original Coke back and they frequently let it be known. Soon a world-wide war was waged and in the end, the public was victorious. This set the stage for Cherry-Coke and even Coca-Cola clothes.

Which Coke is it?

Hippie Rebirth

Back to a day when long haired humanoids roamed the earth ... when token had nothing to do with riding the metro. — Smash DC 101

It's coming back and coming back with a great deal of force. The Hippie Era is of what is being spoken of, if you haven't yet guessed it. The styles of the Hippie Era were most clearly evident in one simple form — the paisley.

Paisley littered the stores this year and was definitely one of the most popular styles around.

Then DC101 came around with the "Psychedelic Supper" a menage of late 60's, early 70's music with a phychedelic touch. Live Aid even brought back a few memories with Bob Dylan and Crosby, Stills, and Nash joined by Neil Young.

A new drug craze that rivaled the popularity of LSD was around in the form of mushrooms and an unknown drug called "Ecstacy."

Now there is even a radio station that is totally devoted to the classics, WCXR, which took over the country sound of KIX 106.

It looks like it's here to stay and more signs may be evident in the future. PEACE.

"Which way to Woodstock?" asks Dan Golodner.

Goodbye Watch,

The Video Era

The age of music videos has dawned upon us, and its sunset appears far off. The emergence of music videos has irreversibly changed the music industry. Musicians use this new-found technique to further enhance the meaning of their songs, and to promote their product. The video also affords the musician much more visibility than he had before the video era, when the public's only view of the artist was at concerts.

Although popular among the nation's youth, music videos have met with a vehemant reaction from a large faction that feels videos are a medium for sex and violence, corrupting its viewers, the large portion of which are children. Despite the opposition, videos continue to escalate in popularity. In fact, just as with radio, video has now developed a variety of formats, including country, top forty, and black contemporary.

Madonna — shakin' to the groove.

Hello Swatch

Watch out Timex, move over Rolex, Swatch is here! One of the biggest and most popular fashion crazes this year was that of the Swatch. Swatches could be found in any size and color. There is a Swatch to match every outfit and suit every occasion. Miraculously enough they also tell time. The variety of Swatches is virtually endless. At one point this year scratch and sniff Swatches were popular. Now the paisley style is very much in vogue. Swatch guards can be purchased for that extra touch of fashion.

Besides Swatches being quite stylish they are also extremely durable. This fact alone may keep the Swatch fad around for awhile. Swatches bend and are flexible and are almost impossible to break or scratch. They never need to be wound and they keep excellent time. Swatch is a Swiss product that has been extremely successful for them and has shown them great profits. In price, Swatches range anywhere from $20 and up, depending on the style and size.

People are sure to have noticed that there aren't too many Swatch-less arms this year. In fact it has become quite fashionable to wear two or three Swatches on the same wrist. So whether you're wearing one Swatch or three, big or little, you'd be very much in step with one of the biggest fashion fads of this year.

The switch to Swatch.

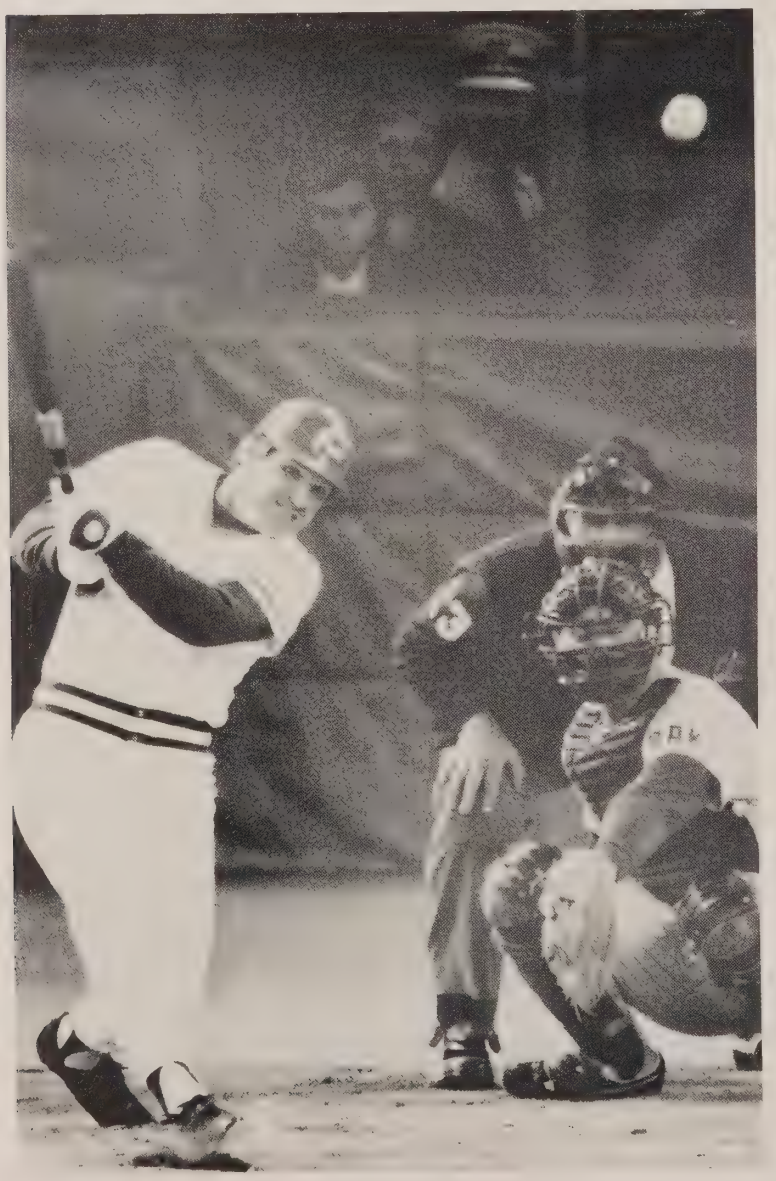
Pete Rose got a new Red Corvette. The license plate reads "PR #4192", and there isn't a baseball fan out there who doesn't know what that means. On September 11, 1985 at 8:01 p.m. exactly, forty-four year old Peter Edward Rose stood at the plate of Cincinnati's Riverfront Stadium and with one swing of the bat put his name over Ty Cobbs for the prestigious "Most Hits, Career."

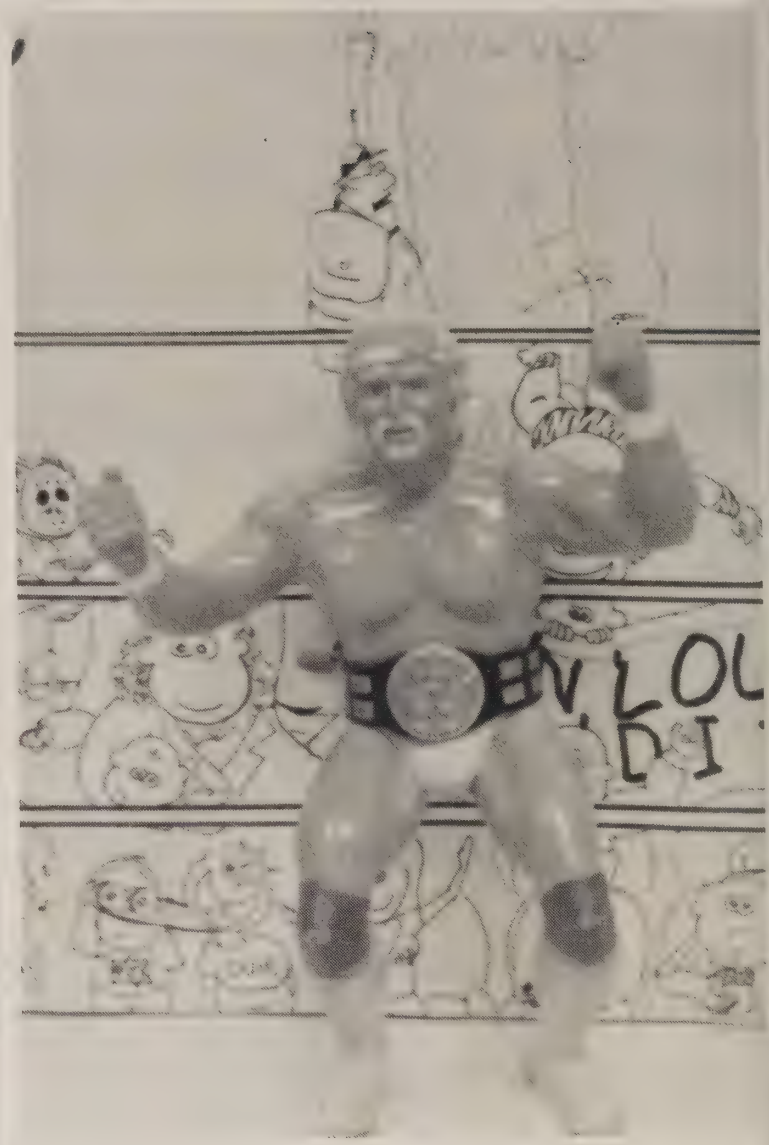
Rose's timing gave base ball a bit of a facelift after a year cluttered with revelations of extensive drug use by players, labor talks, a ministrike and a couple of Billy Martin bar room brawls.

The big hit brought on a standing ovation from 47,237 fans, the red Corvette, presented by Reds owner Marge Scott, countless promotion and even some rare tears from Pete Rose himself. He also received the mandatory telephone call from Ronald Reagan, "Thank you Mr. President, you missed a good ball game," was Rose's comment to the President.

Pete Rose grunts it out for hit 4,193.

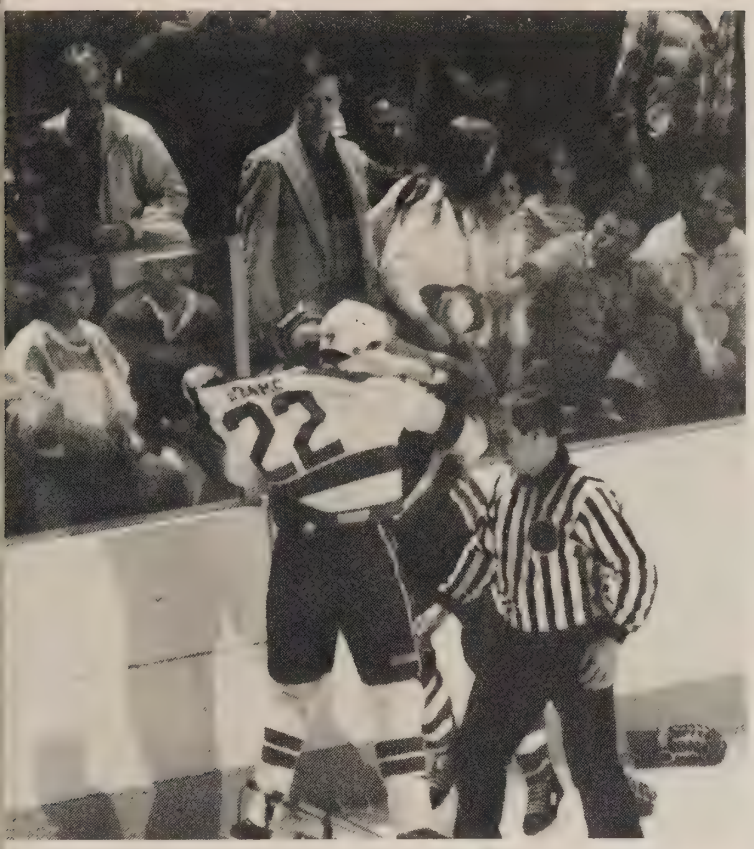


Hulkmania is running rampant this evening at the Cap Centre.

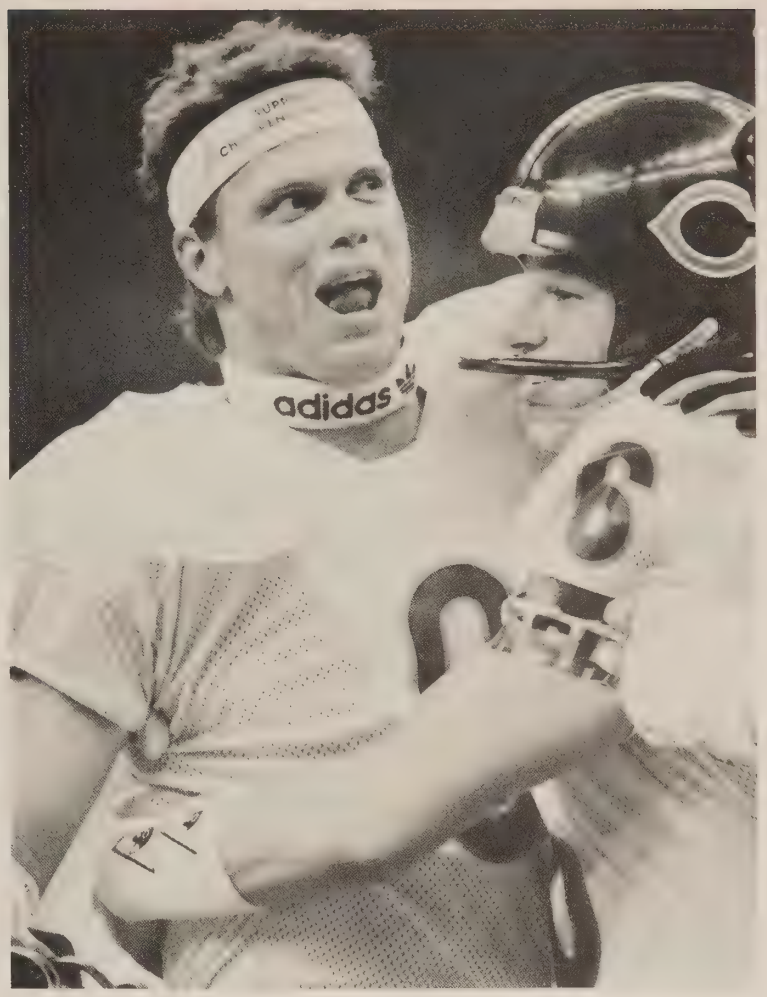


Wrestlemania

This sports year has seen wrestling. With Hulk Hogan, Junk Yard Dog, and Super Fly Snuka, the world of wrestling has gained a little more respect and lots more attention. Even movie stars have gotten into the act by sponsoring the different wrestlers! Cyndi Lauper isnow a big supporter of Hulk Hogan. She can be seen at the wrestling ring whenever Hulk appears. The question still remains, how real is the wrestling? Most people, especially the very young, feel it's very real, others feel it is realistic but not real. The television program, 20/20 had a segment on this year with two former wrestlers who demonstrated the slam, bangs, and punches. They admitted that it was "fake" but that it takes talent to present a real like image to believers. Regardless, today's viewers see this as a form of entertainment, not as an act, per se.



A typical hockey game — Adams vs. an Islander.



Jim McMahon sings the national anthem.

Hockey Heaven

This has been a year of drug-scams, record breakings, and many new rules and regulations. But hockey has kept itself out of the main stream news. Hockey has not been known as the traditional sport of America, but is it? This sport, the major past-time of our neighbors to the north, has caught on and is running loose in sports arenas throughout the U.S. The players, with weapons in hand and ammo sliding across the ice, give the people what they want, VIOLENCE! Could hockey be the end of football? We'll just have to wait and see.

Steroids In High School Sports

With the competition becoming greater and greater for a starting position in the growing world of high school sports, the smaller less physically endowed athletes find themselves faced with two choices: sacrifice and spend hours upon hours in the weight room or take a short cut: steroids.

Upon asking reliable sources it was found that steriods could be made available to athletes who wished to take them. And it was reported that there is a small amount of athletes taking them.

Look, fellas, these steroids can really mess you up, they'll take a few things and shrink them while in the process of enlarging your muscles. So if you can't scarifice yourself by working out, don't go out for the sport.

The Bear Facts

The 1985-1986 professional football season can easily be summed up in two words: Chicago Bears. The Bears rolled through their season this year leaving in their wake a host of demoralizing teams. They amassed a total of 20 wins and 1 loss en route to winning Super Bowl XXI.

The Bears almost accomplished a task that has been accomplished by one other team; going undefeated throughout the season and that was done by the Miami Dolphins in 1972. Ironically their only loss came to the Dolphins this year. The Bears thoroughly destroyed their Super Bowl opponents, the New England Patriots, by a score of 46 to 10.

Much of their success this year can be attributed to their overwhleming defense. This defense seemed unopposable and one of the reasons was a big rookie by the name of "The Refrigerator." This man was given a lot of media hype this year and could be seen in McDonald's commercials and a video. But he was most easily noticed on the field, destroying opposing linemen or gracefully prancing across the goal line (with the football). With the big man behind quarterback Jim McMahon on goal line situations, the Bears seemed unstoppable.

The Bears were a tremendous team this year and had proper leadership under one who can't be ignored, "Iron" Mike Ditka. Ditka deserves credit for leading a rough team like the Bears to the Super Bowl Championship.

Bruce: Friend or Foe

Born in the U.S.A.?

Bruce Springsteen howls out these and other patriotic lyrics to thousands of screaming fans that regularly attend his concerts.

But is Bruce the true patriot he makes himself out to be by singing these songs or is he just trying to cover the fact that he didn't fulfill his duty as an American and fight in the Vietnam war.

Sure, we've heard the story that his mother was sick and confined to bed and he had to stay at home and support her. Sure!

We understand, Bruce, we really do. Well if you couldn't uphold your responsibility as a U.S. citizen and fight, the next time you feel like singing your Pro-U.S.A. lyrics, practice what you preach.

Once Homecoming Queen, could Maureen MacDonald be our new Miss U.S.A.?

Miss Universe?

On January 20th at the Omni International Hotel in Norfolk, Maureen McDonnell was crowned Miss Virginia. Competing in no preliminary pageants, she was one of seventy-nine contestants and she was sponsored by local merchants. Miss McDonnell is now eligible to compete in the Miss USA pageant to be held May 20th in Miami, Florida.

What makes this years Miss Virginia more significant than most in the eyes of the Mt. Vernon community? Miss McDonnell was graduated from Mt. Vernon High School. Not only did she attend Mt. Vernon for her four years of high school, but she was also Mt. Vernon's Homecoming and Prom Queen. Since graduating from high school in eighty three, Miss McDonnell has been attending The University of Notre Dame in Indiana where she is majoring in Marketing.

Tidbits

The past school year was like any other, filled with unforgettable and eminently forgettable personalities and moments . . .

Michael Jackson, after last year's big money making "Victory Tour" with his brothers has virtually disappeared. Prince, who temporarily has filled the void, since Jackson left, won ten nominations for the American Music Awards . . .

Mitch Snyder, the man who understands just how cold it is on a heating grate, signed an option for a movie deal about his life that became a reality in December when the producers paid his Community for Creative Non-Violence $150,000. Actor Martin Sheen was signed to play Snyder . . .

The Flintstones turned 25 this year, and to commemorate this landmark, a replica of Fred Flintstone's car was created. On a test drive in California, a half-amused police officer ticketed the car for speeding . . .

The party of the year was easily the $25,000 per couple fundraiser for the John F. Kennedy Memorial Library at Senator Edward Kennedy's McLean home. It was attended by no less than the President and Mrs. Reagan, Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis and a host of Kennedy friends and family . . .

Love flourished this year with Billy Joel marrying model Christie Brinkley, Bruce Springsteen marrying actress/model Julianne Phillips, Sylvester Stallone tying the knot with companion Brigitte Nielson, and who could forget the secretive wedding of Madonna and Sean Penn. Finding love in St. Elizabeth's Hospital, John Hinkley Jr., who attempted to shoot the President, wanted to marry fellow patient Leslie de Veau. The biggest split of the year had to be squeaky clean Marie Osmond and her husband Steve Craig. Also getting big press coverage was the John DeLorean and Christina Ferrare divorce. With names like that, how could they ever split up? . . .

Star gazers love to note how their subjects dress. Most agree that the best dressed is easily Don Johnson and Philip Michael Thomas (take your pick). As always, Liberace is popular on both best and worst dressed. Liberace once said, "I vowed that if I ever became famous, I'd never wear anything ripped, torn, or patched." He's keeping his promise with a vengeance. That unnameable Prince was high on the list of worst dressed, with his style, often known as "Chic that gives you the creeps". Bruce "The Boss" Springsteen easily wins the trend setting category, with Levi 501 jeans sales up 26%. Although Madonna certainly has not made it on the best dressed list, most agree that she has done wonders with the trashy look . . .

President Reagan lets us know he's doing okay after his cancer treatment. Mrs. Reagan waves happily.

An earthquake devastated Mexico City.

WORLD, NATION, AND STATE

DEMOCRATS SWEEP STATEWIDE ELECTIONS

Virginia shattered its conservative image on November 5, 1985 in the statewide elections. Democrats claimed the state's three top posts. Gerald Baliles defeated Republican Wyatt B. Durrette for the Governorship, Douglas Wilder won a close contest over John Chichester to become the Lieutenant Governor, and Mary Sue Terry trounced her opponent W.R. "Buster" O'Brian, in the race for Attorney General by a twenty-two percent margin.

The elections were possibly the most historic in Virginia's history. Douglas Wilder was the first black to be elected to a statewide office in the south since Reconstruction and Mary Sue Terry was the first woman ever elected to statewide office in Virginia. Early in the campaign, most political analysts and journalists felt that a woman and a minority would be an enormous, if not insurmountable liability to the moderate Baliles. Post election comments suggested that Wilder and Terry actually boosted Balile's campaign.

Balile's victory has been largely attributed to the fact that he worked with and was actively supported by former Governor Charles Robb. The very popular Robb was not allowed to run for reelection because Virginia law doesn't permit governors to succeed themselves.

Baliles, Wilder and Terry began their four year terms on January 11, 1986 in Richmond with a festive inaugural gala. In his inaugural speech, Baliles stressed that his administration will place an emphasis on education, transportation, and the state's penal system.

Baliles wins support of young Mt. Vernon Democrats.

Turmoil in South Africa

The past year had the usual political hotspots and concerns. Such as Nicaragua, the Soviet Union, Afghanistan, Libya, but one last year became particularly notable. South Africa's system of segregation between whites, Indians, and blacks known as apartheid came under heavy fire last year. South Africa's apartheid system has been in place since its independence in 1948, yet it was not until last year that South Africa became inundated with attacks from civil rights groups and foreign governments.

The new found interest in South Africa was especially visible in our area. Daily protests at the South African embassy suddenly out numbered those at the Soviet Embassy. Scores of people were willingly arrested for demonstrating too close to an embassy. Many people have noted how the embassy looked like Washington of the sixties during the civil rights movements. College campuses suddenly emerged as hot seats for debate too, as a large number of American universities have invested in South Africa and now were considering withdrawing their investments.

Perhaps the South African anti-apartheid movement has become stronger due to very popular and voiciferous advocates. On any given day one could see Amy Carter, D.C. Mayor Marion Barry, the singing trio of Peter, Paul and Mary, or Atlanta Mayor Andrew Young being arrested at the embassy. Singers were also involved in the movement. They even wrote a song and made a video called "Sun City" which criticized performers who played in the South

Violence in South Africa reaches its fever pitch.

Space Program Forges On

The years 1985 and 1986 were memorable for space exploration, space technology, and natural occurances. This was the year that Halley's Comet made its first appearance since 1910. The comet, only showing itself in seventy-six year intervals, hurls its ball of ice and dust at the speed of fifteen hundred feet per second. The comet won't be flying through town again until the year 2062, so if you missed it this time, you should hope to live to a ripe old age to see the comet first hand.

Man, himself, has started to utilize the vast potential of outer space. Inter-Continental Ballistic Missiles (ICBMs) are already a part of our defense program ... President Ronald Reagan has proposed a space-based anti-ICBMN laser system that would destroy incoming missiles before they reenter the earth's atmosphere. This strategic Defense Intiative (SDI), better known as Star Wars (much to the dismay of George Lucus), has become very controversal. On the one hand SDI is seen as a peace-keeper protecting America from the maelstrom of nuclear war. Opponents feel SDI is a waste of money and may be used as an offensive weapon.

Despite the achievements in space technology, 1986 will be remembered as a year of tragedy for the nation's space program. On 28 January 1986 the space shuttle Challenger carrying astronauts: Gregory Jarvis, Ronald McNair, Ellison Onizuka, Judith Resnik, Dick Scobee, and Michael Smith school teacher Christa McAuliffe exploded ninety seconds after lift-off. The nation's space program was temporarily placed in jeopardy. The President, however, has promised to keep forging ahead with the nation's space program.

America mourns with the greatest tragedy in space exploration history.

African resort town of Sun City in Bophuthatwan. Led by singer Little Steven and with help from people such as Bruce Springsteen and Bob Dylan the song became a hit, and strengthened the anti-aparthied movement.

The protests, however, did not accomplish much in the way of reform. Only France totally severed relations with South Africa and few countries took meaningful sanctions against the Country, believing Prime Minister Botha when he said they would be working towards change. Critics of such sanctions against South Africa said they would hurt the black working force because they would be forced into unemployment. Some, however, felt it was the only thing one could do. "A person has to make sacrifices to achieve freedom," said senior Kurt Totten. "No one is going to just hand it to you."

There are others who feel the protests were just a passing fad. "It was a peace movement for 80's liberals looking for a cause." said senior Chris Tolles, who is known for his cynical views. A more optimistic senior, Molly Dugan felt the anti-aparthied movement served some purpose. "At the least, I believe it made governments and corporations think twice about their South African involvement," she noted, "but I don't feel it will be a lasting cause." There are already signs that attention is being diverted from South Africa to countries such as Libya. It would almost appear that the nation's protestors are acting on whims, and history has shown that such capriciousness rarely produces anything of value for a cause. Yet South Africa, with or without protests at its embassies, anti-apartheid songs, and disenfranchisements, will remain a center of human rights violations for at least the near future. Any remaining anti-apartheid activists may lose their interest all together. A decade ago this country wanted to save Bangladesh from starvation — they're still starving. Today the country wants to keep South Africans from suffering — in 1990 will they still be suffering?

Reagan and Gorbachev Meet

1985 has come and gone, and the biggest non-event of the year had to be the Geneva Summit Conference between Soviet Leader Mikhail Gorbachev and President Ronald Reagan. From the beginning, the press had been talking about chances of a new arms control agreement. After all, didn't Ronald Reagan want a lasting treaty that would be his ticket to historical greatness? Wasn't Mikhail Gorbachev the first in a new breed of younger Soviet Leaders who took a safe line towards the West? The only arms control agreement to come out of Geneva was an agreement to keep negotiating towards an agreement. There was some constructive work done in Geneva however. The two leaders agreed to more cultural exchanges to open up communications between East and West. The exchanges are to occur mainly through the arts and sports. Americans will have a better chance to watch the Bolshoc Ballet and Soviet hockey team while the Soviets will get a closer look at the Rockets and American style basketball. Also, both countries agreed to lift restrictions that had been placed on each others airlines. It seems that Ronald Reagan's proper place in history will derive from ballet rather than ballistic missle treaties. But never fear, those of you disappointed in the results of the Geneva summit, just wait until this fall when the whole process gets started up again.

Sometimes A Tragic End

1983 and 1984 were the safest years in aviation history. 1985, however, was the worst. Over 1,600 people were killed in airplane disasters. The three worst accidents were each due to different problems. An Air India 747, originating from Toronto, on route from Montreal to London and Bombay, crashed off the coast of Ireland, killing all aboard. A bomb had been apparently placed on the plane by Indian terrorists. A Delta Airlines L-1011 crashed at Dallas Fort Worth Regional in October, killing all 189 aboard. That crash was due to turbulence experienced upon encountering windshear. The worst crash in aviation occured in August when a Japan Air Lines 747 rammed into a snow-covered mountain. 520 passengers aboard the plane, bound for Osaka from Tokyo, were killed. Only four of them survived. The plane went out of control when it lost its tail section.

According to "Airline Hour" host David Beckerman flying is up to 20% safer than driving. "The events of the past year, simply stress the need for greater attention to safety and tighter security in the world's airports," says Beckerman. He adds, "If these needs are met, 1986 has the potential to become the safest year in aviation history."

Air travel — the worst year ever.

Of 1985's many tragedies, the MOVE incident in Philadelphia was one of the man caused disasters that stood out. Mayor Wilson B. Goode gave the green light which ended the stand-off between the armed organization MOVE, and Philadelphia's finest. Mayor Goode was under much pressure from the public to do something about this organization. The MOVE house was fortified with boarded windows and a defensive bunker on top of the MOVE house. Mayor Goode was worried if a police officer tried to approach the house that there were going to be casualties. A percussion bomb dropped from a police helicopter was the only answer that could be thought of on such short notice. Apparently a spark that flew off of the bomb ignited the house sending it into flames, killing 11 MOVE members. Mayor Goode claimed all responsibility for the actions that were taken and promised to have the victims of this incident into their new houses by Christmas. New houses but not homes.

Philadelphia police became radical, burning the headquarters of MOVE.

In today's society, on every major news network during the dinner hour, Americans were forced to view a lot of footage on terrorist attacks abroad. Americans became victims of these brutal acts vicariously or realistically. People had to think twice about taking even a tourist route to Europe. For various reasons, these terrorists saw fit to inflict their views on innocent people, even small children. The United States took a firm position against sanctioning terrorism and limited their political and economic support.

Among the most notable and devastating occurences were: the Palestinian hijacking of TWA flight 847 in June; four PLO men seized an Italian ship in October. In the November hijacking of an Egyptian airliner, sixty were killed. Rescue forces stormed the plane and terrorists lobbed their grenades, setting off asphyxiating fires. Over the Christmas holidays, Rome's Leonardo daVinci and Vienna's Schwechat airports were targets of terrorists bombings.

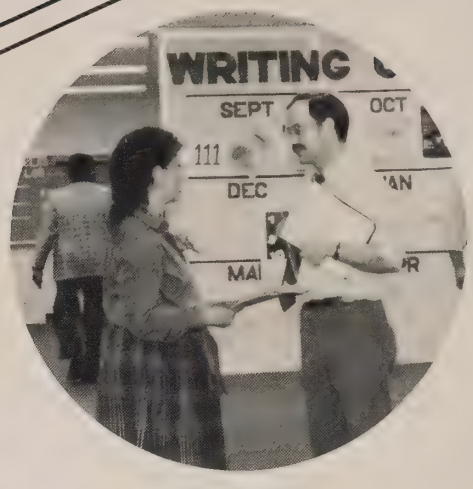
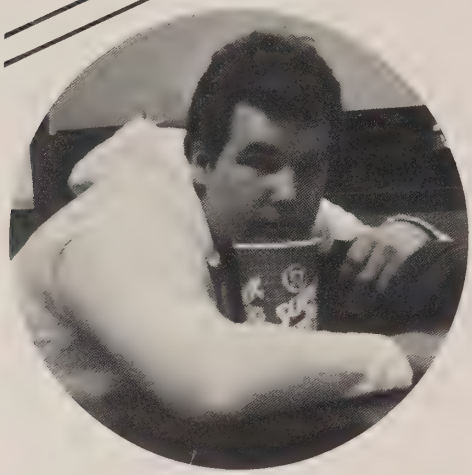
CLOSING

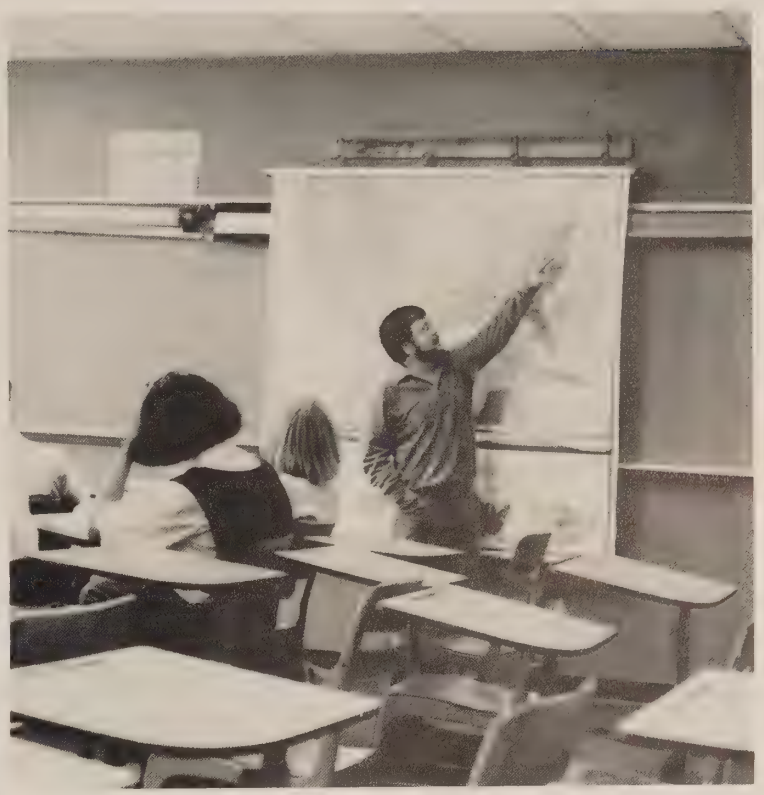


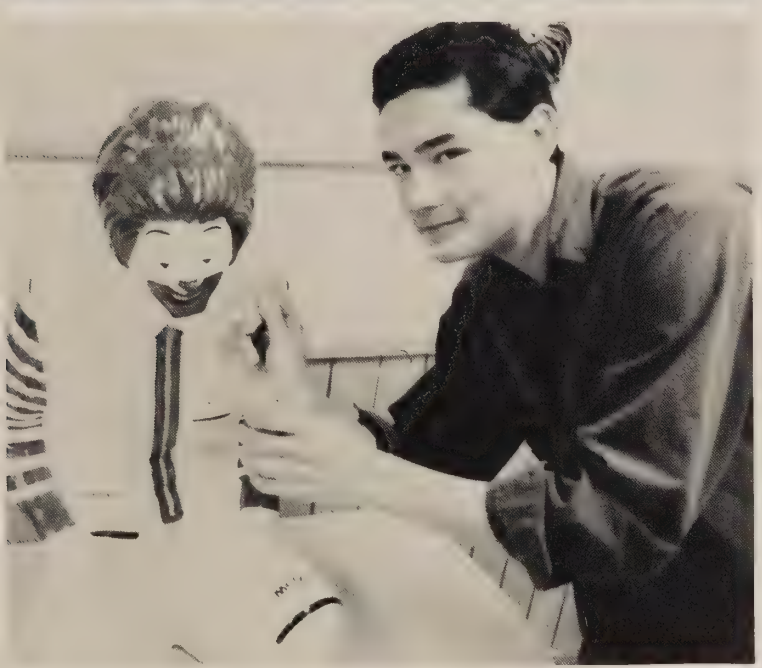


Touch of the class ... the senior class makes improvements.

Pomp and Circumstance . . . Helen Rock waves good bye to Mt. Vernon.

Mr. Kerlin's students have had it with that 10% inspiration, 90% perspiration philosophy.





You deserve a break today . . . Marshall Basham takes time out with a special friend.

Hear no evil, speak no evil . . . Katie O'Mallie, Matt Bracken, Milton Cooper and friends spend an afternoon in the sunshine.

Reflections Of The Past

The school year of 1985-86 came to a close with lots of good and bad memories. Students, teachers, and administrators reflected on the year with some happiness and some regret. Regardless of the past happenings, everyone will in the future remember what was said and done for a lifetime. No one wants to remember unpleasant experiences, but somehow these experiences will surface five, ten, or even twenty years from this date. No one will be able to recall all the names of those involved or the exact circumstances surrounding the incident, but everyone will reflect on something that changed his life for better or for worse. In spite of what happened in the past, one learned a lot and used what one learned to build a future.

Places in the Heart

Mount Vernon was the perfect place for students who were looking for a quiet place, a busy place, a private place, or simply a place. Because of its architectural design, Mount Vernon had a lot of secluded places one could call home. During the school day, students found it necessary to isolate themselves from the masses to think. Sometimes students wanted to be with a love one and the only way to do that was in a special segment of the building itself. Some places were off limits to students because they could not be seen by the ever so mindful eye of the administrators. Despite this little set back though, students still found the time and the place to call their own.

Glenn, Kenny, Mathew, and John rate the selections below.

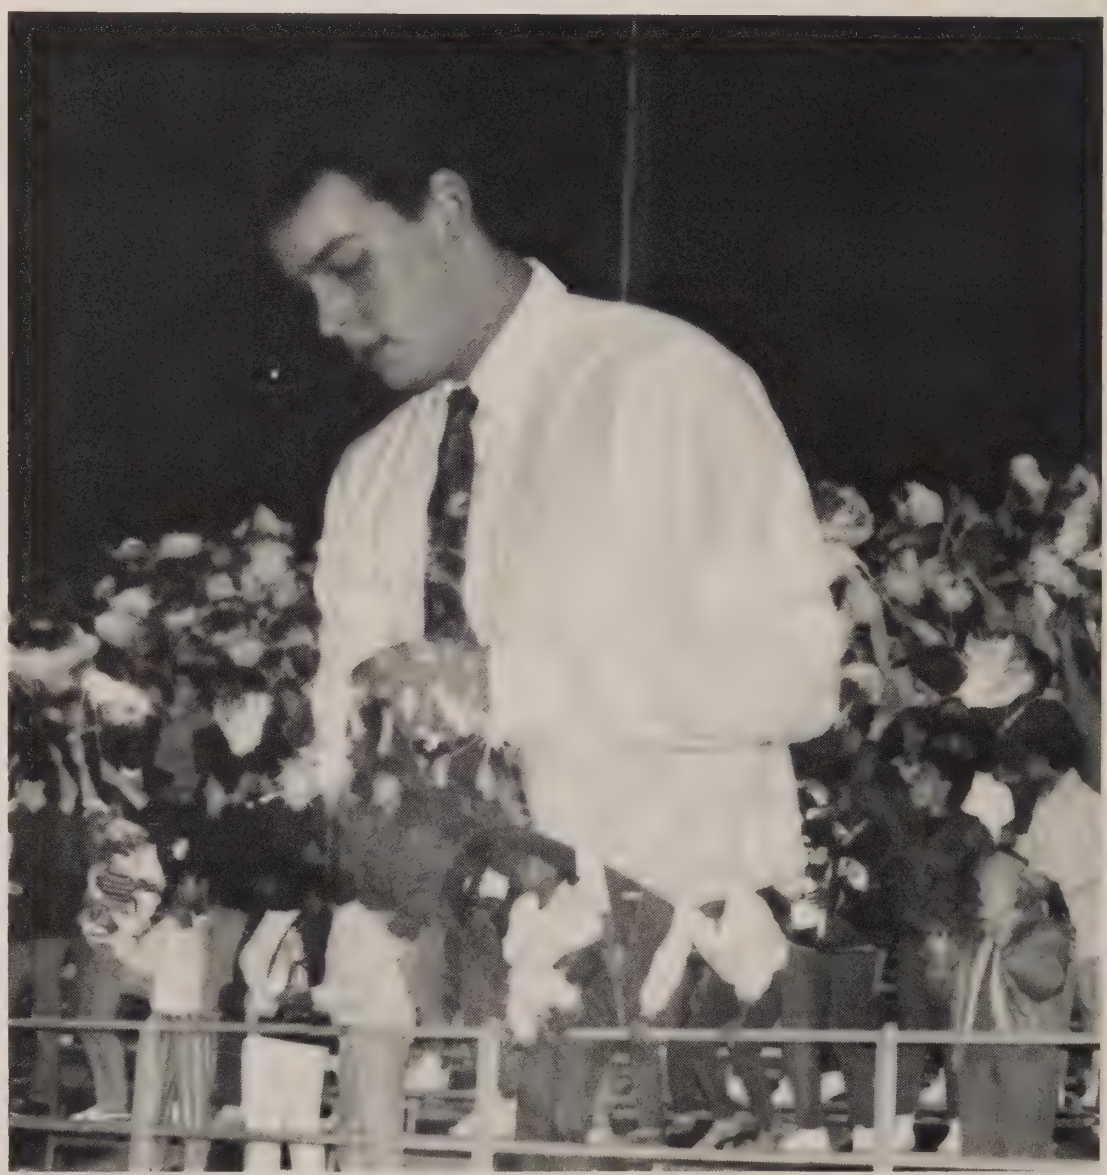
Making the Scene Possible

The 1986 Surveyor's theme is "Behind the Scene." This theme incorporated a lot of different aspects of the school: the academic program, the athletic program, the social gatherings, and the community and staff involvement. People make things work. People work together to make things work. There were so many things happening this past year, not everyone knew everything going on. The band competition in Virginia Beach or Richmond, the track team competition at George Mason, the debate team's competition at Harvard University, the journalism trip to Columbia University, and the fashion merchandising trip to New York, etc. . . . were just a few of the behind the scene happenings. The advisors and the administrators made it possible for the students to get the most out of each and every happening. In closing on the year, everyone contributed to the entire school environment and everyone made it a happening event. The yearbook staff would like to congratulate all the graduating seniors who stepped out of this scene into a bigger and better one.

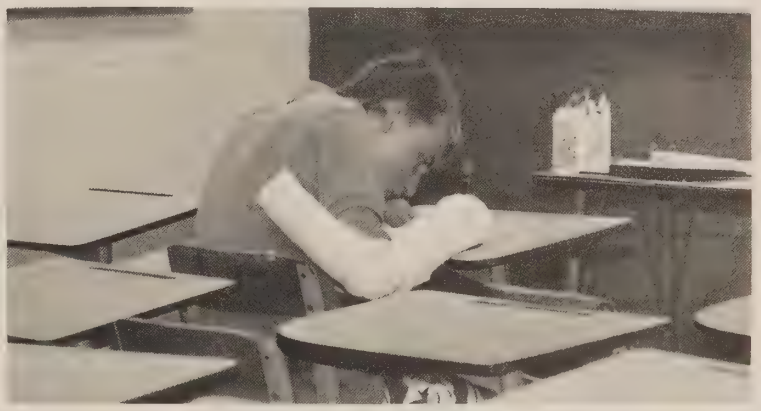


Ed Cunningham fondly remembers all the little people.

Let's get physical! ... Steve Irrizary gets into science.

Anticipation ... Laura Sacco doesn't know about the bomb in her locker.

Struggling to finish, Chris Gordon overcomes all obstacles.



An empty hall ... an ending year ... a new beginning.

It's not the end . . .

it's just the beginning
